HUTCHISON FROM OTTAWA

Diefenbaker Aligns Policy With Socreds

By BRUCE HUTCHISON
Editor The Victoria Daily Times

OTTAWA — After a baffling silence, John Diefenbaker has emerged with a Conservative party policy, probably set the pattern of the June election and provided a clear test of the Canadian government's courage.

In his Toronto speech Monday night, doubtless the most important of his career, Mr. Diefenbaker has begun a frontal attack on the government's anti-inflation policies.

But this obviously is only the beginning of his attack. It will broaden shortly, the government believes, into an attempt to pit the provinces against the present national taxation structure. An historic election campaign is now under way.

When all the trimmings are removed, Mr. Diefenbaker's Toronto speech is a direct repudiation of the Government's so-called tight money policy. He says that interest rates are now too high. They are damaging small business by making it too difficult for the small businessman to borrow money. And this, Mr. Diefenbaker argues, worsens the inflationary danger by discouraging production.

His theory is virtually word for word the same theory expounded by Premier Bennett of British Columbia, and Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party. In monetary policy there is little real difference between Mr. Diefenbaker and the Social Crediters.

Whether that fact presages some co-operation between the Conservative and Social Credit parties in the election remains to be seen.

Tory, Socred Co-Operation?

Secondly, Mr. Diefenbaker comes out for those drastic tax reductions which the government regards as highly inflationary at a time when the total appetite for goods exceeds the supply.

Thirdly, the Toronto speech hints at the revival of an issue as old as Confederation—namely, the right of the provinces and the alleged attempt of the

In Desperate Need of Support

The Diefenbaker speech must be related to its context in Toronto.

The Conservative leader went there desperately in need of support from the Ontario Premier, Leslie Frost, the most powerful Conservative in the traditionally Conservative province.

Mr. Frost has been denouncing the latest fiscal agreements between the federal and provincial governments as grossly unfair to the provinces, and particularly to Ontario. In the last week Mr. Frost's supporters in the provincial legislature have been conducting a chorus of protest against the new federal-provincial tax arrangements.

Now Mr. Diefenbaker de-

Inflation to Bursting Point

In the Government's view any such policy would bring inflation to the bursting point. But much more serious, in its opinion, would be any easing in the tight money policy which is, in fact, only a policy of holding the total money supply at its present level, without any reduction.

The only way to reduce interest rates, as proposed by Mr. Diefenbaker, is to expand the money supply since the existing interest rates are not fixed by the Government but only by the law of supply and demand in the money market.

Mr. Diefenbaker's whole policy, on which he proposes to fight the election, is thus regarded by the Government as nothing more nor less than a policy of inflation, very thinly disguised.

This policy, under present conditions, is considered utterly disastrous and unthinkable but whether the Government has the courage to resist it, or whether it will begin to ease its anti-inflation policy is not yet known. It will be known only when Hon. Walter Harris, minister of finance, introduces his spring budget.

But the Government knows

TOBACCO MEN ASK TAX CUT ON CIGARETS

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario tobacco growers today asked Finance Minister Harris—a non-smoker—to reduce federal taxes by six cents per package of 20 cigarettes.

The last cut in federal taxes on cigarettes—4.4c—came in the 1953 budget.

The federal tax burden on cigarettes now is 17.7c per pack of 20.

Soviet Secretly Arming Nasser?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia is reported to have resumed arms shipments to Egypt in recent weeks in what appears to be a move to rebuild President Nasser's battered armed forces.

U.S. officials who disclosed this today said, however, they could not be sure whether the shipments represent a new purchase or additional deliveries under a $250,000,000 contract disclosed in September, 1955.

There have been rumors, but no confirmation, of a second deal. The officials said they have what they regard as satisfactory evidence that Soviet deliveries include medium tanks, artillery, personnel carriers, and probably Russian jet fighters.

These weapons are understood to have been unloaded in crates from Communist ships amid great secrecy, mainly at the Egyptian port of Alexandria. The new shipments all have arrived since the Middle East fighting ended three months ago.

Any new Soviet arms shipments to Egypt would be a violation of a United Nations assembly ceasefire resolution, adopted Nov. 1, which called on all countries to refrain from introducing new war materials into the Middle East area.

The first contract is known to have included more than 100 MIG jet fighters and about 50 IL-28 twin jet medium bombers.

Seven of them were given life imprisonment. Meanwhile, British troops arrested several members of the Cyprus police force, following discovery of a large arms dump in a bungalow occupied by a Cypriot policeman.

Two Tots Saved From Fiery Death In 2-Storey Drop

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dyck dropped their two young children to safety from the second-storey roof of a blazing house early today. In all, nine persons fled the flames.

Mrs. Dyck gashed her forearm when she broke a window to lead her family onto a porch roof and her husband fell from the eaves as he lowered himself to the ground so that he could catch one of the children. He was not hurt. Mrs. Dyck was treated at hospital.

The children, uninjured, were caught by a neighbor, Louis Raats.

Zellerbach Newsprint Hiked $4 Ton

Cost of newsprint to The Victoria Times will be increased $4 a ton, effective March 1, the newspaper was advised today by Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., who supply The Times from Duncan Bay on Vancouver Island.

The price increase follows a similar announcement by Powell River three weeks ago. Newsprint, which cost $35 a ton before the war, has now reached a record peak of $130 a ton f.o.b. dock in Victoria.

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE

New Cabinet Post, Tougher Road Laws

SPEECH HIGHLIGHTS

1. New ministry of recreation and conservation.
2. Re-organization of mines department.
3. Measures to speed an iron and steel industry.
4. B.C. Appeal Court to be enlarged.
5. Home-owners to receive $28 annual tax refund.
6. Larger grants to municipalities.
7. New Indian welfare legislation.
8. Expanded apprenticeship vocational program.
9. New highway traffic regulations.
10. Aid for farmers and ranchers.

Conservation, Recreation Under Single Portfolio

Creation of a new cabinet portfolio of recreation and conservation, the promised $28 annual tax rebate to home-owners and new highway traffic regulations were forecast today in the Speech from the Throne opening the 25th B.C. legislature.

There were few surprises in the speech, which outlines legislation planned by the government at the coming session.

It was read after the House opening at 3 p.m. by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross.

Besides the new cabinet post, the present Department of Trade and Industry will become the department of industrial development, trade and commerce.

An amendment to the Constitution Act will be required to create the new portfolios. The Throne Speech referred to the forecast introduction of a new consolidated Municipal Act and added:

Municipal Aid

"Larger grants to municipalities will be made as a direct result of increased census figures, and you will be asked to consider legislation abolishing road and poll tax on non-property owners."

New measures are planned to encourage exploration and development of natural resources and the department of mines will be reorganized to this end. The government will explore "every possible means" of having a basic iron and steel smelting industry started in the province.

"In relation to our rapidly expanding oil and natural gas development... you will be asked to give consideration to certain steps that will assure the province not only of continued development in this field, but also of wise and practical conservation of this resource."

More Judges

The government is "giving consideration" to enlarging the jurisdiction of the County Courts and increasing the size of the B.C. Court of Appeal, which now has five members. Legislation will be introduced dealing with the welfare of B.C.'s native Indians.

The departments of education and labor will combine to set

GALLERIES TENSE

Law Clerk Spat Draws Full House

Crowds packed the public galleries at the B.C. Legislature and thousands turned on their TV sets this afternoon in anticipation of "fireworks" at the state opening by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross.

Never before in B.C.'s history have so many people sought admission on opening day. The buildings have been flooded with inquiries all week and a line-up began to form outside the entrance to the public galleries before noon.

Public interest was stimulated by the announced determination of former legislative law clerk W. Berkeley Monteith and former sergeant-at-arms Edgar A. Jamieson to ignore their recent dismissal from office by the B.C. Cabinet until ratified by the whole house.

Mr. Monteith was expected to attend the opening attired in the traditional black gown of his former office and take up his position as usual, ignoring the presence of his successor, city lawyer Ian M. Horne.

Unlike Mr. Monteith, Mr. Jamieson said he would not put up a public fight, but would not resign until he was officially "fired" by the Legislature—and this must take place on opening day.

Mr. Monteith had repeatedly stated that "only physical restraint" would keep him away from the Legislature. Recently he added that he would not enter into any undignified scuffle but would accept restraint even if it were only a tap on the shoulder by an authorized official—presumably the new sergeant-at-arms, Denzil Ashby.

EAST 'INTERESTED' IN B.C. PIG-IRON

Eastern Canada firms are showing keen interest in possibility of developing a pig iron industry in B.C. A number of inquiries have been received since the government announced last month it was lifting a reserve on 250 square miles of iron-rich land on Graham Island, in the Queen Charlotte Islands, Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan said today.

Interest is "quite substantial," he said, but declined to reveal the source of the inquiries.

The first company to establish a pig iron industry in B.C. from iron ore mined in the province will be eligible for a $3 a ton "bounty," with a limit of $200,000 a year for a maximum of 10 years.

FAR NORTH MOVING HERE?

Snow, Cold, Sleet—And Ice Worms, Too

BY HUMPHRY DAVY

Horticulturist R. M. Adamson of the Dominion Experimental Farm, Saanichton, was sweeping snow from his sidewalk Wednesday.

Suddenly the bristles at the end of his broom appeared to be moving.

He bent down and noticed that the broom's bristles were laden with tiny brown worms.

He gazed at the snowfield and it also appeared to be moving—the cause—more worms. Horticulturists at the farm would not believe Mr. Adamson that there were "snow worms" until they saw the tiny creatures with their own eyes.

In the village people said the snow brought the worms. The worms have been sent down for identification by Harry Anderson, Dominion entomologist.

Questioned on the subject, Dr. Clifford Carl, museum director, said there is such a thing as an "ice" or "snow" worm which occurs in the far north.

"Victoria is not the far north, though," he said. "I've never heard of any being found around here."

"Snow worms" have been a controversial subject among laymen ever since poet Robert Service wrote a poem about the creatures in the Yukon. Most people to this day don't believe they exist.

Aussie Sets Swim Mark

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuters)—David Thiele, Australia's Olympic swimming gold medalist, broke the world 100-yard backstroke record to-night by one-tenth of a second. Thiele swam the distance in 55.6 seconds to beat the record of 55.7 second set by Yoshio Oyakawa of the United States, in 1954.

Quite a few mouths got opened along with th' House. All that aid from Russia must stick in Nasser's crop-cotton crop, that is. Seems t' me th' hangin' on t' th' $28 tax rebate goin' t' be a catch-as-catch-can affair.

City Firm Layoff Blamed On Housing Money Curb

OTHER SHIFTS REMAIN

In announcing the suspension of the night shift, the company gave no indication of when and if work might be resumed. Both morning and afternoon shifts in the mill will be maintained.

If blamed the layoff on a combination of seasonal reduction in demand for plywood, and "the adverse effect of current credit restrictions on housing and construction programs in Canada" that have made it impossible to continue the present production.

SALES SLACKEN

The announcement came close on the heels of an announcement by Manning Timber Products Ltd. that it plans to close its Store Street mill Feb. 15 because of a depressed lumber market.

Alexander Hendry, manager

of Sooke Lake Lumber Ltd., said his company ceased operation on the graveyard shift of its plywood mill before Christmas for similar reasons.

"Exactly the same things affect us as B.C. Forest Products," he said.

Moore-Whittington Lumber Co. Ltd. officials reported credit restrictions had "considerably curbed" their lumber sales, but that production will continue at the present level until June at least.

A plea for the federal government to "do something" in connection with the "tight money" policy was voiced at a Victoria Labor Council meeting Wednesday night by Victor Midgley, international representative of the carpenters' brotherhood.

"Our local is really concerned," he told the council. "Many other industries are going to follow unless the federal government does something."

SITUATION "CRITICAL"

Al Playfair, president of the local office workers' union, termed the situation as "critical," and urged delegates to the council to send protests against restricted credit to their members of parliament.

An indication of the industry's outlook was contained in a report to the directors of MacMillan and Bloedel Ltd. at their recent annual meeting by B. M. Hoffmeister, board chairman.

He said, in part: "Recent reports indicate that housing starts in Canada in 1957 will be 90,000 to 100,000, compared to 125,000 in 1956. This sharp reduction in starts, together with credit restrictions, indicates a poor prospect for the Canadian market to absorb the additional production (from the company's expanded facilities) this year."

FURTHER DROP SEEN

"Our trade with the United Kingdom now consists almost entirely of special sizes and grades that are purchased here only because they are not available from the smaller trees grown in the Baltic."

"Such conditions indicate still a further reduction of our sales to the United Kingdom. This leaves the United States as the only volume market available to us. While we have been able to increase our sales to this market, we are operating at a considerable disadvantage compared to competitive mills in the United States because of unfavorable exchange, which today is about four per cent, duty of $1 per thousand board feet, and a water freight penalty of approximately $7 per thousand, based on current charter prices.

"All sizes and types of mills are affected. However, it is particularly serious for the smaller non-integrated mills, a number of which have already been forced to close down indefinitely."

Rebellious Convicts Yield, Free Hostages

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (AP) — Rioting convicts knuckled under early today after ruling Utah State Prison in nearly 12 hours of uncontrolled revolt that was a mixture of violent destruction and almost tender concern for hostages.

Some prisoners went on a wild alcohol and power binge; others watched TV and protected their captives.

They yielded to Governor George D. Clyde's insistence that he would not consider their demands until they turned loose their hostages and gave up their weapons.

The wild party ended at 4:55 a.m., PST. With the last 18 of the hostages came convict spokesmen who surrendered their arms.

IS POINTS

Governor Clyde said he now will consider the 43 "suggestions" of the prisoners.

One guard was stabbed in the stomach and one prisoner beaten by fellow-convicts during the melee. The prisoner, Alvin Strauss, ringleader in the 1951 riot, is reported in fair condition.

The riot started during dinner Wednesday, apparently in an argument between a convict and a guard and spread quickly.

TEXAN ELECTED PRESIDENT OF UBC STUDENTS' COUNCIL

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ben Trevino, 25-year-old native of Brownsville, Tex., was elected by a landslide Wednesday night as president of the student council at the University of British Columbia.

Trevino, who entered UBC's law school in 1954 after a three-year stint in the United States Marines, gained student acclaim for leading a group of students to meet with the provincial cabinet in a bid for increased grants to the university.

BLAMED IN VANCOUVER DEATH

Control of New Pill Asked by Druggists

B.C. Pharmaceutical Association will ask government control over a pill sold openly in Vancouver drug stores which is blamed for the poison death of a North Vancouver woman.

A Victoria representative to the B.C. druggists' association, Charles Burr, said today the pills are not sold in Victoria.

MISUSED

Pharmacist at Royal Jubilee Hospital, Mr. Burr said the pills, known as "Shoff's Pills" were made for a Vancouver druggist. They were intended for relief of menstrual pains but were misused by some people as an agent to bring on abortion.

Fireman Committed In Forged Will Case

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gilbert Campbell was committed Wednesday for Supreme Court trial on three charges of forgery arising from the Thompson will case.

A fourth charge of conspiracy laid against the 51-year-old Vancouver fireman was dismissed by Magistrate Oscar Orr.

The magistrate said there was sufficient evidence to warrant commitment on the charge of forging a $936,000 will.

But he said he could find no evidence to sustain the charge Campbell conspired to defraud the two heirs of James Thomp-

Licence Plate Snafu Can't Be Corrected

British Columbia's blue and white number plates cannot be changed even though Alberta plates have the same color scheme, a spokesman for the B.C. motor vehicles branch said today.

"The same difficulty applies in Alberta," he said. "Alberta plates are already being delivered to car owners. They cannot be changed."

He added, however, that while the colors are the same the general structure of the plate is different. Alberta plates have two letters in front of the number and the date 1957 appears at the top.

"I do not think they should lead to confusion," the spokesman said.

"This has never happened before," the spokesman said.

Social Credit Leader Raps 'Canned Culture'

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA—The Social Credit party may try to make the Canada Council an issue in the federal election expected this spring.

A strong indication to that effect was given by Social Credit Leader Low as the House approved introduction of a bill to establish the culture-promoting council.

He said he will oppose most strenuously any attempt to impose "canned culture" on Canadians. Improvements in social security legislation were far more important.

The House later approved by a vote of 101 to 5 a resolution introducing the bill. The vote was requested by CCF whip Stanley Knowles. The only opposition came from five Social Credit members present at the time.

The government proposes to give the council $50,000,000 as an endowment, with revenue from the funds going to assist the humanities, social sciences and arts. Another $50,000,000 would be distributed to universities.

Prime Minister St. Laurent came under criticism from both Mr. Knowles and Mr. Low for his disclosure Tuesday that federal succession duties from the estates of two multi-millionaires totalled just under $100,000,000.

The estates were those of Sir James Dunn, president of Algoma Steel Co. of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Izaak Killam, Montreal investment dealer.

Violated Tax Secrecy Provisions

Mr. Knowles said the prime minister violated secrecy provisions of the Income Tax Act by his disclosure. The Winnipeg North Centre member said he had been told on previous occasions by Revenue Minister McCann that such information was secret.

Mr. St. Laurent said that in considering the amount to be provided for the council he had in mind "windfalls" from the two financiers' estates.

John B. Hamilton (PC-York West) asked whether the government will finance the council in future by waiting for windfalls.

Mr. St. Laurent admitted that perhaps he had violated the act technically with his disclosure. But he had been repeating only what had been published generally in the newspapers.

Mr. Low said it was a "dangerous proceeding" for the government to say it had received a windfall and felt it now had enough money to carry out what the two financiers had been interested in.

In that case, he added, he should be able to direct the government's use of his taxes—into an athletic council, for example.

Colin Cameron (CCF-Nanaimo) said Social Credit is against both sin and culture. It had a "genuine revolution" against thought. It "fished in the muddy waters of ignorance."

It was "shameless hypocrisy" for the Social Credit group to pretend that the government's failure to increase social security benefits was a valid

Royal assent was given to supplementary estimates for the fiscal year ending March 31 totalling $23,000,000, including $2,000,000 for freight rate assistance on western feed grain shipments.

A B.C. Liberal senator complained that the board of transport commissioners "is no longer protecting the public" in the matter of railway freight rates.

Senator Thomas Reid said it is preposterous that B.C. livestock men can import feed "all the way from China" cheaper than they can import it from Alberta. The reason was that prairie feed for export was carried by rail at 20 cents a hundredweight but the charge was 60 cents for domestic movements.

"Can we get redress?" he asked. "No, we can't."

Every recent freight rate case had been decided by the board in favor of the railways. Senator Ralph Horner (PC-Saskatchewan) took issue with Senator Reid. He said the freight subsidy on feed grain from the prairies went to B.C. stockmen "to produce cattle which competed with that of prairie producers."

As for Maritime complaints about the cost of feed grain, he said Atlantic producers should charter ships and bring feed grain direct from Churchill, Man. They could get it much cheaper that way than by rail.

LIBERAL MEMBER OF THE SENATE since 1940, Senator Joseph James Duffus, 80, died at Peterborough, Ont., today after a long illness. The Senate on Jan. 15 took first step to declare vacant seat held by Duffus, after it had been informed he had not attended the last two sessions of parliament. Senate committee two days later postponed for two weeks considering any move to declare seat vacant.

U.K. Retains Death Penalty For Certain-Type Murderers

LONDON (Reuters)—Anti-hanging advocates lost a round in the House of Commons Wednesday night in their fight for total abolition of the death sentence in the United Kingdom. The House passed a bill which restricts the death penalty but refused to eliminate capital punishment altogether.

Baby-Killing Mother Ruled Insane

BADEN-BADEN, Germany (CP)—Mrs. Doris Joan Lock Stevenson, 35-year-old British-born wife of an RCAF corporal, was acquitted today on a charge of murdering her month-old daughter by strangling.

Justice George E. Tritschler of Manitoba, presiding over the trial, handed out a finding of "not guilty because of insanity."

He said his verdict includes an order that she remain in custody in a hospital until she recovers her health.

Those who commit murder during a theft or while resisting arrest, those who kill by shooting or with explosives and two-time murderers may still be hanged.

A "on hanging" bill sponsored by Labor member Sydney Silverman was passed in the Commons last year but was blocked by the House of Lords. The Lords is expected to approve the new bill, an admitted compromise brought in by Prime Minister Macmillan's government. Silverman's bill called for complete abolition of capital punishment.

Few Pay Traffic Fines in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP)—Police Chief Roger Lemire told Quebec City's administrative committee Wednesday that apparently only about 27 per cent of the 80,000-100,000 traffic tickets issued in Quebec annually are ever paid. Mr. Lemire, taking part in a debate on traffic problems, asked for complete control over traffic tickets, now partly the responsibility of municipal court.

The Secret Price of Beer

THE PROVINCIAL POLITICS OF Manitoba have lately been convulsed by an issue which should interest us in British Columbia.

The speaker of the Manitoba Legislature has refused to allow any discussion of beer prices because they are now under consideration by the Public Utility Board and therefore, in the speaker's judgment, sub judice.

It will be seen at once that if this ruling is upheld the Legislature's freedom of discussion can be conveniently throttled whenever a public agency or a royal commission happens to be considering a matter of public business.

For example, no member of the British Columbia Legislature could discuss electrical rates if they happened to be before the Public Utility Commission, as they are most of the time. No one could discuss forest problems until Chief Justice Sloan had completed his report.

The doctrine of the Manitoba speaker is ridiculous and doubtless will not stand. But one aspect of Manitoba's public policy has much to commend it.

Beer prices there are being considered by the Public Utility Board. They are no longer fixed secretly at the discretion of the government, as they are still fixed in British Columbia. The brewers must justify their prices before an impartial authority and the result of this recent reform is a drop in beer prices.

Here the Government not only fixes the prices that it will pay the brewers but refuses to tell the public what these prices are.

When this newspaper asked the Liquor Control Board and Attorney-General Bonner some months ago what prices the brewers were receiving, we were told that this was none of the public's business, though the public must pay those prices. Incredible as it may seem, the Government would not release the figures. However, they were obtained elsewhere and published in these columns.

Whether the existing price is too high, too low or exactly right we do not know. The public certainly does not know. The Liquor Control Board, being merely a branch of the Attorney-General's department, does precisely what the Government says. But does the Attorney-General himself know that his prices are exactly right? If so, how does he know?

In Manitoba the government was put on the spot last year by an energetic opposition. An inquiry by a legislative committee established to everyone's satisfaction that beer prices were too high and must be reduced. Then the Public Utility Board went to work—an authority not influenced by partisan politics and solely concerned with the costs and the proper profits of the brewing industry.

All this was very embarrassing to the Manitoba Government, especially when the campaign fund contributions of the brewers to various political parties were fully revealed, though they seemed surprisingly modest. But at least Manitoba has a method of establishing beer prices in the open, by economics and not politics.

Is it remotely possible that Mr. Bonner would consider such a sensible and honest method here?

Mollycoddling Doesn't Help

J. EDGAR HOOVER, CHIEF OF the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation, says that the "present appalling youth situation" is the "crux of our crime problem."

He believes that mollycoddling the young hoodlums should cease and that the names of "young thugs" should be publicized because the major problem "is no longer one of bad children but of young criminals."

Local police and citizens, he argues, have a right to know the identities of the potential threats to public order within their communities.

Mr. Hoover speaks about conditions in the United States. The fact that his opinion gives some support to a recommendation of Vancouver's Police Chief George Archer indicates that the problem is not entirely American.

Chief Archer last year urged that the juvenile age be reduced from 18 to 16 — presumably on the premise that youngsters old enough to operate in organized gangs were old enough to take the consequences when they were caught.

The public has good reason to share the concern shown by Mr. Hoover and Chief Archer. The situation in New York or in Vancouver may differ materially from that in Victoria. But when young gangs assume the threatening proportions of those which swarmed down Yates Street a year ago last Halloween, the difference may be one of degree only.

Corked Against Everybody

WHILE BRITAIN AND WESTERN Europe suffer acutely from oil shortages and loss of earnings because the Suez Canal remains blocked, they are not alone in their misfortune.

Also victims are Egypt itself and Nasser's friends in the Arab world. Apart from Egypt's loss of tolls, it will have only 60 per cent of its normal oil supply until the canal is re-opened—and this in spite of imports from the Soviet Union and the purchase of $10,000,000 worth of petroleum products from Saudi Arabia.

Saudi Arabia, for its part, is losing up to 30 per cent of its income from oil while Suez transport is halted. India's five year development plan has been stretched to seven years in part because of transport difficulties.

Other Middle Eastern countries suffer severe economic wounds from the Suez trouble. Iraq lost about $20,000,000 a month when the pipeline which carries 80 per cent of its oil production was sabotaged by Syria. And Syria, in turn, is reportedly unable to replace its normal supply of refined oil products obtained from Lebanese refineries which drew their crude from the closed Iraq Petroleum Company line.

Injury has also been inflicted on the Arab principalities of Kuwait and Qatar.

The difficulties of the Arab countries do nothing to relieve the shortages in Britain and Western Europe. They do underscore the point, however, that while the cork remains in the Suez bottle, nobody can drink, be he friend or foe of the Arabs. That seems to spell pressure on Mr. Nasser.

Eaters and Cracklers

WHEN THE AUTHORITIES are considering the problem of reckless drivers, we wish they would also consider the problem of reckless eaters and cracklers. We mean, of course, the eaters of popcorn and candy in movie theatres, the people who always punctuate every breathless passage on the screen with a crackle of wrapping paper.

High drama is simply wasted on the spectator when, behind him, sits an eater and crackler. The best movie is spoiled by these extra sound effects. Even Shakespeare can hardly survive popcorn.

It is not a legal crime, so far as we know, to eat and crackle. Assuredly it is a crime of manners. We don't think the criminal should be executed, tortured or imprisoned. But the authorities ought to devise some way of suspending their eating and crackling licences in cases of recklessness and public danger.

The Commission Laid an Egg

OTTAWA—For all its labors and very high abilities the Gordon Commission seems likely to prove the most remarkable anti-climax in the modern political history of Canada. To put it crudely but accurately, the Commission has laid an egg, so far as the practical politicians of Ottawa are concerned.

The politicians may prove to be wrong. The Commission's report may light a fire later on. But for the present at least, and probably for this election year, the Government has no intention of acting on the report and the Opposition has virtually ignored it.

The Liberal politicians' criticism of the report is simple and natural. They know that in several respects—though this, of course, is not said outright—the report condemns the Government's policy.

NATIONALLY, the Commission quarrels with the Government's ban on electrical power exports; its whole method of buying the prairie farmers' wheat; its refusal to compensate the railways for the low freight rates on grain fixed by the famous Crow's Nest Pass agreement of 1898.

Apart from these specific criticisms the report rejects as impossible idealism the Government's long-standing hope of reducing the world's barriers to trade, says that these barriers are here to stay and advises Canada to keep its tariffs at their present level.

MOREOVER, after confirming the existing Canadian tariff and brushing off the chance of reducing other nations' tariffs, the Commission then contradicts itself, in the Government's opinion, by proposing in various innocuous-looking paragraphs many subtle but effective measures of protection for Canadian industry.

Basically, indeed, it is a protectionist report to a Government which has long fought for lower tariffs and made the present tariff one of the lowest in the world.

The experts of the Government make a more serious and detailed criticism of the Gordon report. They say it is superficial, half-baked and, in places, contradictory.

THIS may be an unfair criticism since the present document is only a preliminary survey. The full report will not be ready until next autumn. Then, it is hoped, the Commission will support its conclusions with facts and clear up many ambiguities.

The decision to issue a preliminary report was a mistake. It exposed the Commission unnecessarily to the charge of superficiality and confusion. Apparently Mr. Walter Gordon, the chairman, felt obligated to let the Government have a first installment of advice without delay. After the reception given to this advice by the Government—especially Mr. C. D. Howe's bitter attack on the Commission's wheat policy—Mr. Gordon must realize that he would have been wiser to delay his findings until they were complete.

THE Government's experts (who, unlike the politicians have no election axes to grind) have many objections to the report but two are outstanding. First, the Commission makes a remarkable finding on the controversial problem of paramount concern to British Columbia where the Columbia River's huge powers are running, unused, to sea. The natural objective of federal and provincial policy (already forecast by Premier Bennett) would be to install near the Mica Creek dam site a large industry or industries, such as aluminum, that could use large quantities of power. After those needs, and the growing needs of Vancouver, had been met it would be time enough to consider any export of power to the United States.

ON this point the Federal and Provincial Governments apparently are in complete agreement. Both are opposed to power exports on principle, though Mr. Bennett actually favors exports in another form, since he would give most of the downstream benefits—the extra power developed by the Mica Creek dam—to the United States.

The Gordon Commission baffles the Federal Government and its experts by rejecting as unlikely and not very profitable any thought of establishing large Canadian industries near the dam site.

It proposes instead a vast export of power to the United States for a term of years, assuming against all historic experience that this power can be recaptured when Canada needs it. This policy finds no sympathy in official Ottawa and is regarded as both defeatist and unrealistic.

SECOND, the Government's experts fasten a fishy eye on the Commission's vague proposal that Canada should restrain the export of raw materials such as some minerals, by a system of permits.

An argument can be made against these exports and has been made for nearly a hundred years. The present Government rejects that view for reasons too well known to need explanation here, but the chief objection to the Gordon Commission's finding stands quite apart from the merits of the historic argument against exports.

THE Commission says that restrictions on exports would have to vary as between industries depending on their individual circumstances. Therefore, export permits would be granted to some industries and not to others. The Government thus would take power to discriminate as between industries.

The possibilities of favoritism and political finagling in any scheme of this sort simply appal any civil servant.

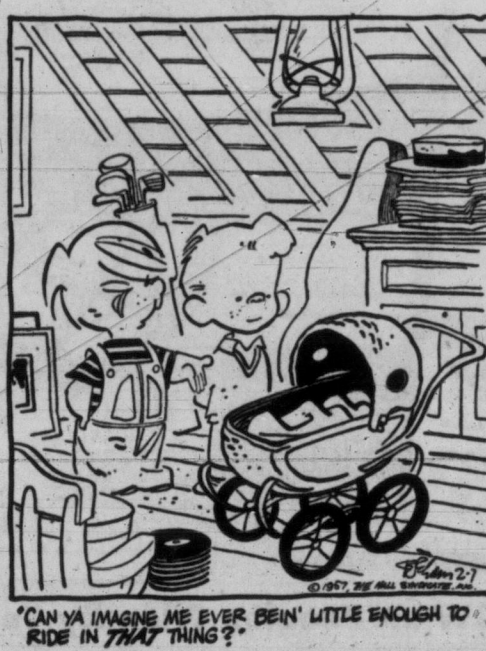

Actually there is little or no possibility of the present Government adopting this policy of restriction in any form. And little possibility, for that matter, that the Gordon Commission's findings in general will alter government policy in any important respect.

MARKED for READING HIGHEST UNIT

I believe that the quality and development of the individual human being is of immense importance, and that all societies should be so organized and so imbued with true religious feeling as to permit the fullest bodily and spiritual development of the individuals of each sex. Contrary to the widespread belief that ascetic "saints" are nobler than married people, I believe that the truly married loving pair is the highest and most moral human unit.

Blow Against Polio

Through the medium of your newspaper, we would like to express the sincere appreciation of the Vic-Van-Isle and Sidney Kinsmen Clubs for the wonderful support given to the B.C. Polio Fund benefit television show last Saturday night.

The appeals of the speakers, the good sportsmanship of the contestants and the talent of the performers, all earned our grateful thanks. Through the courtesy of the Civil Defence, the amateur radio operators were able to reach the Victoria Motorcycle, the Volkswagen and Quartermiller Clubs, who made the collections, and to all of whom we are deeply indebted.

The management and entire staff of CHEK-TV are to be commended for their generous contribution to the community as well as in the interest of the B.C. Polio Fund. Many others, including the Saanich Police traffic control and those who loaned props and equipment, made the benefit show possible.

We feel local interest was extremely high, due in no small measure to the co-operation of the press and the excellent manner in which this event was publicized.

On behalf of the B.C. Polio Fund, we would like to offer all who assisted in any manner, and particularly to the public for their generous response, our heartiest thanks.

Facts on the Hungarians

Judging from some of the letters published in the Times recently, and from comments I have heard, I feel that many people are under a misapprehension regarding the assistance that the Government is giving to the Hungarian refugees here; also they do not understand the Hungarians' plight compared to that of the British immigrant.

To take the first point, the refugees do not receive a daily allowance to tide them over as one of your correspondents stated. Nor are there selected jobs for them. Nor does the Government give financial assistance to those who offer their hospitality (I understand the Government would be prepared to do so where hardship results but to the best of my knowledge such assistance has not been requested).

Regarding employment, some of these refugees are skilled tradesmen but are more than anxious to take on any odd job that is offered (which owing to the inclement weather have been few). When one can earn a few dollars he shares it with his friends. From my own observations, I would say that these immigrants are very grateful for the help they are receiving from private citizens and in time will become worthy members (and taxpayers) of this community.

As for the second point, the British immigrant has not known tyranny and oppression, is able to plan his emigration with his family, bring some of his assets with him, the greatest being his English tongue, which gives him advantages worth more than any free passage.

How Simple

In February 2, Times, Silenus is, as usual, worth reading. Talking about "The Lord's Day Act" and Judge Clearhue's sensible remarks about the Sidney case, he says: "Such a law can all too easily become an instrument of persecution. It is impossible to enforce it properly without a police force of Gestapo-like size and methods. This being the case, it should not be enforced at all; and if it is not enforced at all, there is no reason for it to exist."

And then, this logical conclusion: "And where religion enters an argument, reason flies out the window." How simple, how true! All Humanists — and other reasonable individuals — should keep this statement forever before them.

Serene Silver?

One outstanding point has been missed in the discussion about the risk of infection from taking the wine according to the Anglican ritual. The cups used are always sterling silver, on which germs cannot survive. Hence the use of silver plated surgical instruments (before the advent of stainless steel) and the use of silver forks and spoons when these were first adopted.

Serenity Lost

During the past few years those of us living on Epsom Drive chose this location to buy or build our homes because it offered what was sought, comparative seclusion with safety for our children.

Some months ago, regardless of the protest of the residents of this area, CHEK Television was granted a permit by the Saanich Council to build a commercial enterprise in this residential area. At the public hearing we were assured by the council as a whole that there would be no increase in our taxes.

Since then assessment notices received by us indicate this may not be the case. We feel that our property values have decreased because of CHEK Television's interference and the daily commotion which now exists due to increased traffic. When a special broadcast is in progress this disturbance extends not only into the night, but to the early hours of the next morning.

We, the residents, feel we have gained nothing, instead must tolerate poor TV reception and intolerable traffic conditions. Where does a fair deal enter the picture? We are asking you, the public.

Work and Wages

The Trades and Labor Council have been urging people to carry out their inside alterations and household repairs during the winter months. In Times of Feb. 1 last it was reported that carpenters in Nanaimo and district are asking for an hourly wage of $3 per hour, a thirty-hour week, plus fringe benefits. No comment necessary.

E. P. PORTER.

For Bad Drivers

It is gratifying to learn that the new B.C. Legislature is proposing a bill to provide stiffer penalties for drivers of motor vehicles in British Columbia. Last year was the worst on record. In the city of Victoria, B.C., we have about the poorest class of motor vehicle drivers in the world.

Some of the common violations of traffic regulations follow:

1. Motorists not giving the right of way to pedestrians on the crosswalks at intersections and other crossings.
2. Motorists going through street intersections on the amber traffic lights when they could have easily stopped their cars at the front line of intersections.
3. Making left turns on red traffic lights.

4. Motorists not giving any signals making left turns at intersections.

5. Motorists giving no signals turning out of parked areas into traffic.

6. Motorists sounding horns at stationary cars at curbs to attract attention.

7. Double parking of motor vehicles on city streets, obstructing traffic.

8. Motorists with dirty and unreadable motor car licence plates (too lazy to clean plates).

9. Motorists parked in bus stops.

It is the duty of the city to keep the streets safe for everybody and to prevent accidents. I suggest that it is necessary to have a few more policemen for traffic duty only in the city of Victoria.

Hurray for the Leash

More Canine Control

It was a good item of news in Monday's Times which said "All dogs on leash unless on owners property."

Up to now, dogs have had the freedom of the streets in most of the city, with the deplorable results of filthy sidewalks which contaminate shoes and clothing of children especially. Entrances to stores are made disgusting and vegetables and produce for human consumption on display outside the dealers premises are defiled by dogs, as are milk bottles stacked at many street corners.

From Our Files

Feb. 7, 1897—Reports from Nelson tell of a big strike in the Hall mines. Apparently efforts are being made to keep the situation secret and few details have come out.

Feb. 7, 1917—Charlie Chaplin's film "The Champion" is drawing big audiences to the Majestic Theatre this week.

Feb. 7, 1937—Tomorrow will be the busiest day for months in the port of Victoria, with seven ships due to arrive, including the CPR liner, Empress of Asia, inbound from the Orient.

DOG-TIRED.

Dog Nuisance

One of the most cheering items of local news that has recently appeared in the Press, is that the present City Council intends to put an end to the nuisance of roaming dogs.

They are merely intending to enforce an already existing by-law that dogs may only be on the streets when on leash or under control.

Previous councils did nothing to enforce that by-law and thus had a moral responsibility for poison being put out by victims of the dog nuisance, who had been driven to desperation.

Underfed dogs that have to scavenge to find food—knocking lids off garbage cans etc.—have no place at large.

A dog is frequently said to be "a man's friend." A more correct description for roaming and barking dogs is "many neighbors' nuisance."

Roaming dogs are also a traffic danger; especially those that rush at cyclists.

It is to be hoped that, for once, the City Council will really do something effective to combat the dog nuisance.

RESIDENT.

The Cosy Little Cloud

I'D not mind the thought of eventual death so much if I knew I'd be given a cosy little cloud where I could snuggle down—all comfy-like—and watch what was happening in the world below.

Because I'm sure there'll be so many things that I'll want to see the outcome of. I'll want to see what happens to the role of women in society. For the emancipation of women is still so new that we have hardly seen the start of it.

Will all the women of the future go out to work like men? Up to now, they've been handicapped by the production and care of children. But if Rostand's theories are correct, and if the state undertakes the care of children almost from the time of birth, then what's to keep women in the home? Will it be healthy for society if women as a whole forsake their traditional role? Will it make for human happiness?

I'll want to see what happens to the automobile. How long can we continue to endure the increasing carnage on the roads? What will be the solution?

I'll want to see what happens to our burial customs. Will cemeteries become old-fashioned? Will the great populations of the future look back with horror to the barbaric days when we used precious arable land for the burial of the dead? Because social mores do change, and I can see no reason why this one shouldn't change in time.

I'll want to see whether all these predictions about enormous populations actually come true. If wars are eliminated, if diseases and famines are checked, if infant mortality is reduced to almost nil, if the normal life span is lengthened, surely populations are bound to increase?

I'll want to see whether the Malthusian theory is correct. It seems to be popping up all over the place these days although for years people laughed at Malthus for saying that the world's population would eventually outstrip the world's food supply.

I'll want to see whether mankind solves this problem by increasing the food supply in ways that we've not yet dreamed of.

Or will the problem be solved by better treatment of the land? Will mankind come to realize that the production of food is the most important task of all? Will mankind, for the sake of survival, have to do some serious thinking about necessities and luxuries?

Will mankind have to reconsider the question of a high birthrate, and break down opposition to discussions of birth control?

After all, a high birthrate has always been encouraged because it was considered good for the strength of a nation and ensured a plentiful supply of manpower in time of war.

But if physical warfare is replaced by the more civilized method of discussions at the international conference table, then surely a high birthrate isn't so important any more? These are just a few of the questions that I'd like to know the answers to.

There's little chance that I shall find them in my lifetime.

So, by golly, I'd better start house-hunting for that cosy little cloud!

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

MANY parents have written me asking what they can do to make a boy grow when it looks as if he is going to stay very short. As I said a while ago, a commercial preparation of the growth hormone, which was isolated a good many years ago by Professor Herbert Evans from the pituitaries of animals, will make a small dachshund grow into a huge hound. But recently, as I chatted about this with my old friend, Dr. Evans, he told me that, because of chemical differences in the growth hormones obtained from cattle, dogs, and men, a commercial product, made from animals, has not worked entirely satisfactorily with children. The results obtained have been erratic.

Now, Dr. C. H. Li, director of the University of California Hormone Research Laboratory, reports that the growth hormone made from monkeys appears to be fairly similar to that of man. Both are very different from the growth hormone obtained from cattle. Dr. Li said that the monkey hormone is now being tested on boys to see if it will make them grow. Unfortunately, if the monkey hormone proves to be effective for children, it will be very hard to get enough of it for commercial use.

An important point is that, after the age of 16 or so, growth in the long bones is finished, and hence one can then no longer hope to get good results from the use of any drug.

HOSPITAL HELPS AT HOME

Montefiore Hospital in New York City has just admitted to its home-care service patient number 1,000. He is a 63-year-old man with a cancer of the stomach which has grown into his liver. He has been anemic and almost confined to his bed. To care for such a man in a hospital could cost from $15 to $20 a day. Also, the man would tie up a bed, much needed for persons with acute troubles. Accordingly, patient No. 1,000 is being given nursing service in his home, and his wife is being taught how to take care of him. Once or twice a week a doctor will go out from the hospital to visit the man. The doctor can go often if he is needed. The cost of such service runs between $3 and $4 a day.

Observers are now coming from many countries to observe the Montefiore experiment, which has worked so well. Already one hospital in Texas has a home-care service for women who have just had a baby. They go home 24 hours after delivery.

According to Dr. Rossman, a hospital should be devoted primarily to surgery and to illnesses that require intensive medical supervision, difficult diagnostic work-ups and other such services. The home-care program is for patients who require some nursing care, with only an occasional visit from a physician. This is particularly the case with patients who have cancer that has scattered throughout the body. Usually the patient is much happier if left at home, surrounded by his loved ones. An occasional visit from the nurse and the physician or a physiotherapist or some special therapist is often all that is needed.

FEWER IRON LUNGS

Dr. W. Kenneth Lane, of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, recently reported in Copenhagen that most polio patients who were in an iron lung can now be gotten out of it. Of 35 persons who had been in a respirator for long periods of time, 18 now are weaned from this aid. Thirty-four of them are able to be at home. Only one of them still must stay in the iron lung all of the time. Twenty-nine are able to feed themselves; six are back at work; and another five expect to go back to work eventually. Ten of the women are mothers and are taking care of their homes. Eight of them need some hired help. Of the five children of school age, three are back in school, and another is expected to go back soon.

TOO LATE FOR THE DOCTOR

Dr. Charles Cameron, former medical and scientific director of the American Cancer Society, complained recently about what he physicians all know, and this is that many persons with cancer fail to go to a physician for months after their symptoms appear. For instance, Dr. Cameron said that the average woman with cancer of the neck of her womb does not go to her doctor until the disease is far advanced. A man with cancer of the voice box, which soon causes him to get hoarse, will wait for—on an average—4½ months before he goes to a doctor. The average patient with cancer of the stomach waits 14 months, and the average woman with cancer of the breast waits several months, until her tumor is the size of a ping-pong ball.

DENTAL HEALTH WEEK

Baby Teeth Vitally Important

This week is being observed across Canada as Dental Health Week. In co-operation with the Victoria and District Dental Society the Times today presents the fifth in a series of six articles designed to help parents guard against dental disease in their children.

The youngster's first teeth are just as important as his permanent teeth.

The care given the so-called baby teeth can often mean the difference between life - long dental health and a need for artificial dentures in young adulthood.

The tooth buds for the child's first teeth begin to form about the sixth week of prenatal life. Calcification begins about the 16th week, and by birth a large part of the crowns of the teeth is already formed.

The first teeth start to appear when the infant is about seven and one-half months old and they continue to come in until the child is about two.

When he is about six years old, the baby teeth begin to be

JOY INTERMINGLES WITH TRAGEDY

Brown-Eyed Boy Talks Again, But Girl Still Lies Unconscious

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bruce Harrington, 13-year-old traffic victim, talked Wednesday for the first time since Dec. 16. He had been in a coma 51 days.

His big brown eyes followed every movement of photographers who went to the Health Centre for Children after it was reported he might be breaking out of his unconsciousness.

He smiled briefly and lifted his left hand to his chest. His lips moved frequently.

Then a nurse brought a dump truck and asked him if he would like to keep it to play with. In a thin but clear voice Bruce replied: "Keep it."

His lips moved soundlessly for a few seconds, then he formed faint but audible words that apparently reflected his joy at being able to speak again: "Oh boy . . . oh boy."

Bruce was struck by a car while riding his bicycle Dec. 16. The semi-private room where he is recovering was still a room of tragedy, however. On the other side of the curtain is Pat Kowalski, 15, unconscious 143 days since she was hit by a car last Sept. 16.

JUST NAME YOUR SPORT, THIS WEEKEND HAS IT

Busiest weekend in the local sports scene for many weeks is in store for Victoria fans.

Friday, Victoria Cougars take on Seattle Americans in a Western Hockey League game at Memorial Arena, visiting players make their first appearance in the annual B.C. badminton tournament at Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club and the annual interscholastic basketball tournament starts at Victoria High School.

Saturday, Victoria's representative rugby team opens the annual McKechnie Cup series at Vancouver; play will continue in the badminton tourney; swimmers will seek Victoria titles in the annual city championships at the Crystal Garden; Esquimalt meets Gorge Hotel in the Jackson Cup soccer final at Royal Athletic Park, and Cougars travel to Seattle.

Badminton, finals and league soccer matches are on tap for Sunday.

WHAT'S THE SCORE?

BY Denny Boyd

PRAIRIE SCRATCH-PAD—From the huge steel and concrete zeppelin hanger at Winnipeg, where anything can happen, to the little old barn in Brandon, where the dying flame of hockey interest isn't warm enough to keep the frost off the inside walls... from Edmonton's immaculate Gardens, where the Cougars and Flyers knocked back 15 goals in the highest goal-scoring game of the season, to the sports art gallery in Calgary, where they saw Colin Kilburn score that goal; but they still don't believe it. This was a prairie trip with the Victoria Cougars...

A prairie trip is many things. It is the cribbage games on the train... the lobby-sitting... those five-course breakfasts on the train... It is wondering what the guys meant when they elected you "cab captain" and then finding out when you got stuck with the tab... It is the books and magazines that pass from hand to hand... the sleep that wouldn't come in the upper berth and the 3 a.m. bull session with trainer Berlyn Hodges in the smoker while the players pounded their ears... renewing old acquaintances in foreign press boxes and finding out how the other half lives... the ham and eggs after a game, waiting for the other scores around the league to come in...

The diary read like this:

Edmonton—This was where goals came in bunches like bananas and Edmonton found that seven weren't enough. This was where Doug Macauley, whose family lives almost next door to the rink, scored three big ones and where Tony Leswick said to Marcel Pelletier, "I'll tear your throat out" and picked up three facial cuts for his rash threat. And this was where Flyer coach Bud Polle angrily tore the pocket off a new suit at the end of the game as the Cougars scored their first overtime victory of the season. And next came...

Calgary—Here it was said that Stamper coach Lee Fogelin was proving himself to be the boss of the club, no matter what the fans said. And where the rumor bucket spilled out the hint that the veteran Doc Couture might be the next Stamper to feel the axe... and where Cougars' Larry Leach ran full-tilt into Stamp hard-rock Art Michalak and it was Michalak who went down, while Leach didn't even lose stride... and where Milan Marcetta looked like the rookie of the year... And here it was that the following conversation was recorded between Pelletier and Hodges, who is in charge of minor expenses incurred by the players:

Pelletier: "Berl, I want to collect a buck for a taxi last night."

Hodges: "How come it was a buck? The rest of the players only paid 50 cents."

Pelletier: "Yes, but I'm a big tipper."

We laughed at that one until we arrived at:

Winnipeg—Where Jarrin Jack Perrin threw that punch heard around the league, and got off with a $100 fine, approximately what he pays for stamps for a week's correspondence... where referee Andy Garby tried hard but proved the folly of calling everything and where the long-handled underwear came out of the suitcase after a short walk down Portage Avenue... and where the fans will not back a team that is composed of Billy Mosenko and six rookies.

And next came:

Brandon—Where civic officials turned out to greet the train as the Regals returned home from a triumphal coast swing. And the mayor stepped up to the Regals' private car, put out his hand in a congratulatory hand-shake to the first player as he stepped off the train—with a case of beer under each arm... where Frank Boucher is doing a great job but deserves better things... where Bob Chrystal looked like the best defenceman in the league and where ex-Toronto Maple Leaf star Vic Lynn, when asked how come he is still hustling like a hungry young rookie, replied, "Why in Hell should I? I still hustle. I love the game as much as when I was a rookie."

... where the referee was an old friend named Dick Davis, who called a fine game... it was in Brandon where the players disclosed where the best steak in the league can be purchased and where Boston Bruins' head scout Harold "Baldy" Cotton said of Cougars' Gordie Wilson, "He is the greatest passer in hockey today; in any league and that includes anyone in the NHL"... It was here, too, that Brandon's Len Haley said, "If the Cougars get into the playoffs, nobody will get them out."

And with that happy thought, we came home.

Stone, Larson Keep Clean Spiel Records

NELSON (CP)—Two rinks, the Reg Stone crew of Trail and the Carl Larson foursome of Chilliwack, remain undefeated after three days of the week-long 62nd annual British Columbia bonspiel here.

Semifinalists in the two top events were decided Wednesday. Stone and Larson are in the semifinals of both events, with four plays to start today.

In the primary "A" Diamond Jubilee event, Stone, who beat Jim Harvey of Nelson in the eighth, will be pitted against Nelson's Milt Ryalls, who eliminated Al Speers of Creston.

Larson knocked Tony Folk of Duncan out of the Jubilee event and will clash with 24-year-old Eric Blagrove of Kimberley in the semifinals.

The other half of the four will see Larson against Bill Croft of Sumnerland. Larson was carried an extra end in eliminating the Speers rink. Croft took out Peerslee.

Play also starts tonight among the eight zone champions to determine a provincial representative in the Dominion finals at Kingston, Ont.

In the secondary "A" event Wednesday, seven rinks advanced to the eighth—R. Mathieson of Kimberley, L. Mackenzie of Crofton, Dick Palmer of Nelson, D. A. Morrison of Kimberley, Dick Topping of Kamloops, W. Karjala of Nanaimo and Tony Folk of Duncan. One more berth had yet to be filled.

Secondary "B" event has two rinks to be decided. Those who have advanced so far are Jim Harvey, L. Mackenzie, Alex Stephenson of Nelson, Bill Carmichael of Prince George, W. Karjala of Nanaimo and Dick Topping of Kamloops.

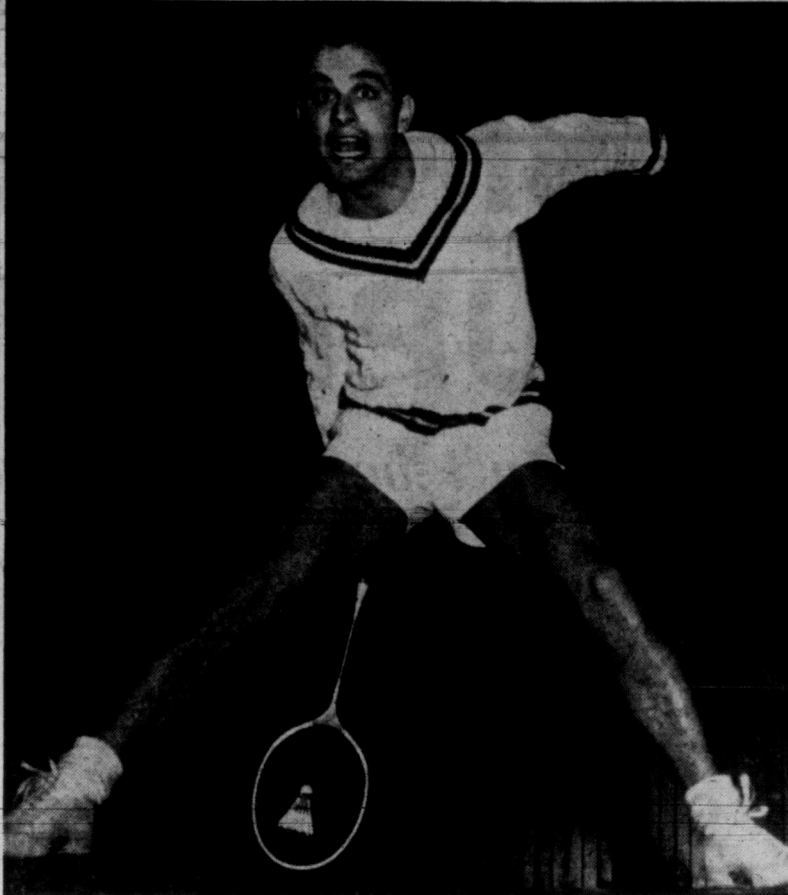

"We were missing our homes and our families," they said. "The United States is an interesting country but no substitute for Hungary."

Hungarians Returning To Homeland

VIENNA (AP)—Two members of Hungary's Olympic championship water polo team said Wednesday they are returning to Hungary because "we are homesick."

They are forward Goergey Karpatis, 21, and goalie Laszlo Jenney, 33, among many Hungarian athletes who remained abroad after the Melbourne Olympic Games.

"We were missing our homes and our families," they said. "The United States is an interesting country but no substitute for Hungary."

MAN TO WATCH IN B.C. TOURNEY

Ability to fire spectacular shots like this one makes Vancouver's Dave McTaggart, Canadian champion and among the top 10 world players, the man to watch for both spectators and rival players in the B.C. badminton tournament, starting tonight at the Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club on Amphion Street. Matches start at 7.30 tonight.

Saddler Given Hope For Return to Ring

NEW YORK (AP)—Sandy Saddler, who retired as featherweight boxing champion last month because of impaired eyesight, said Wednesday he has solid hopes of resuming his ring career after hospital treatment.

"This doctor, Dr. Alexander Knapp, told me I had a very good chance of fighting again," said Saddler. "I'm sure glad to hear it."

Saddler has been in a hospital for a few days, undergoing special treatment. He received a head injury in an auto accident last summer that put him in the hospital for several weeks. He has not fought since then.

Hospital authorities said Saddler has suffered a detached retina in his right eye, resulting in blurred vision. It is expected that it will be known within two weeks whether the treatment will be successful. Hospital authorities said his vision then would be normal.

85-Grand Bonus Boy May Prove Wash-Out

By United Press
Frank Baumann, a swift southpaw who received an $85,000 bonus from the Boston Red Sox five years ago, may have come to the end of a brief major league career because of an elbow injury.

The Red Sox announced yesterday that the 23-year-old Baumann has been assigned to their Oklahoma City farm club of the Texas League on 24-hour option with orders to report next month to Oklahoma City's camp at Orlando, Fla.

"Baumann will train with Oklahoma City," said Sox general manager Joe Cronin. "There will be no pressure on him there and he will have a better chance of getting into shape."

Baumann showed great promise in less than two seasons with Louisville of the American Association, where he had a combined record of 14 wins and seven losses, and then spent 1954 in military service. Battered by a weight problem and then a sore elbow, he appeared in only seven games in 1955 and in only six in 1956.

The Sox also announced that southpaw pitcher Jack Spring of Miami of the International League has signed his '56 Red Sox contract.

The New York Giants brought their total of players signed to 31 with agreements from pitchers Max Surkont (22) and Ramon Monzant.

The New York Yankees reached 17 under contract with pitchers from three rookie pitchers—Al Cicotte, who was 15-12 with Richmond of the International League; Jim Coates, 6-12; and O'Reilly, 10-10 with Birmingham of the Southern Association.

Carefree Canucks Kicking Up Heels

Beat Stamps, Take Third; Amerks Win

Those Vancouver Canucks are just like a hen-pecked husband. While they are at home, they are meek, mild and docile. But when they get out of town for a while, they start roaring like tigers.

Wednesday night in Calgary, the Canucks scored the second straight victory of their final Western Hockey League prairie trip of the season, coming up with four goals in the last period to dump the Calgary Stampede 7-5.

The victory pulled Canucks out of the coast division cellar and moved them into a one-point lead over the Victoria Cougars, who had moved into third with a win and a tie in two games with New Westminister Royals this week.

The Royals, meanwhile, who were making all sorts of gestures at moving into first place in the coast circuit, ran into their third roadblock of the week as they fell to pieces in the third period, gave up five goals and blew a 6-2 decision to the league-leading Seattle Americans.

The Amerks doubled their first-place lead over the Royals to four points as the entire coast division race remains tight.

The Cougars, who had hoped to prosper in idleness while the Canucks and Royals headed for the prairies this week, take on the Seattle club at Memorial Arena Friday night, and the way the Canucks are kicking up their heels on the prairies, a home victory will be a must.

The last time the Canucks played an extended prairie tour, they came home with three victories and one tie.

The return to action of forward Jackie McLeod continued to keep the Canucks thriving.

As last season's all-star right winger scored three goals in the third period to send the Stamps reeling to defeat.

FINNEY STARS

Calgary held a 5-3 lead going into the last on the efforts of Sid Finney, who scored four goals, but the Canucks scored their second win in as many nights as the Stamps collapsed defensively. McLeod had three of Vancouver's goals, Carl Kaiser had two and Mott McLean and Earl Johnson scored singles. Finney, with four, and Art Michalak scored for Calgary.

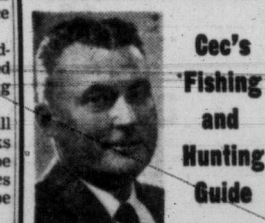

At Seattle, the Americans' fiery George Senick rattled in three goals past a befuddled Bev Bentley in just two minutes and 48 seconds to lead Seattle to their uphill victory.

The clubs were tied midway through the second period on a Royal goal by Steve Hymnack and a Seattle reply from Pete Wright. Gordy Paschway put the Royals ahead in the second period but that was the last time the New Westminister club had a look-in on the game.

Val Fonteyne tied it after four minutes of the third. Senick pumped in three goals sandwiched around a Guyle Fiedler counter and that was more than enough to keep the Amerks in first place.

There are no games scheduled for tonight but Friday night could see some wholesale shuffling in the coast division standings.

While the Cougars entertain Seattle here at home, the Vancouver club will play at Winnipeg and New Westminister will open their final prairie trip of the season at Edmonton.

BREAK FOR LEGION

Indians Fold Lacrosse Tent

Another Indian is due to vanish Friday night. This one is the Indian Lacrosse Club, which will return its franchise to the Inter-City Lacrosse League during the league's annual general meeting at Vancouver Friday night.

Indians decided on the action this week but will ask the league to hold the franchise open until a team of real Indians can be formed for a return to the boxla wars.

The decision gives Pilseners, who were amalgamated with the Indians last year, a free rein to appoint their own officers and name a new coach. It all-but-guarantees that the Mount Pleasant Legion juniors of last year will realize their hopes and step up into senior company as a unit, taking over as Pilseners and adding a few veterans from that club.

The about-to-vanish team, formerly a true Indian club known as the North Shore Indians, was a favorite of fans when box lacrosse was enjoying its greatest popularity on the mainland.

However, as older Indians retired, there were no young braves to take their place and in recent years the only Indian has been Stan Joseph, the league's perennial goaltending star.

Chief Andy Paul, who has been closely associated with the team, hopes to develop another band of young players and eventually bring an all-Indian team back to the league.

Not Letting Andy Go, Muzz' Smartest Deal

Rangers Near Playoff Berth, Habs, Leafs Tie

By The Canadian Press

The best-laid plans of National Hockey League general managers sometimes go awry. It happened to Muzz Patrick of New York Rangers last summer and he's glad.

Patrick was willing to trade Andy Bathgate to Detroit Red Wings but Detroit wouldn't go for the deal.

Wednesday night at New York, Bathgate scored his 20th goal of the season and set up the winner as Rangers nipped Boston Bruins 3-2. The victory, coupled with a 1-1 tie between Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens, moved the fifth-place Blueshirts to within a point of Leafs in the battle for the fourth and last playoff berth.

Bathgate, 24-year-old top scorer for Rangers, set two club records last season when he scored 66 points. It was the highest point-total a Ranger had ever made during a season and his 47 assists were also tops for the team. He scored 19 goals, one less than his 1954-55 output.

CAN DISPLACE LEAFS

Rangers, who have 42 points, visit Chicago tonight and a victory would move them into fourth place, a point ahead of Toronto. Bruins visit Detroit in the only other game.

Defenceman Jack Evans and left winger Dean Prentice scored New York's other goals Wednesday. Centre Cal Gardner and Fleming Mackell tallied for Boston.

Ranger goaltender Gump Worsley thrilled the crowd of 12,039 with his acrobatic work. Although he made only 25 saves—he has had as many as 48 in a game this season—he didn't find many easy shots to clear. Don Simmons made 16 stops.

It was the first Bruin loss in five games and left them in third place with 38 points, five behind the runner-up Canadiens.

A crowd of 14,046 turned up for the game at Toronto, Centre Don Marshall of Montreal and Toronto centre George Armstrong exchanged goals, the latter tying the score in the second period after Marshall had given Canadiens a lead.

Goaltender Jacques Plante was kept busy throughout the game, making 23 saves compared with 20 by Ed Chadwick.

Bears Edge Springfield

HERSHEY (AP)—Hershey Bears defeated Springfield Indians 7-6 Wednesday night in their battle to hold third place in the American Hockey League.

The game opened slowly with only two goals in the first period. Bob Solinger scored for Hershey and Bob Bailey replied for Springfield.

Seven goals were counted in the second period, which ended with Hershey leading 5-4. Hershey marksmen were Willie Marshall, Obie O'Brien with two each, and Dunc Fisher. Ed Slowinski, Jimmy Anderson and Gerry Ehman scored for Springfield.

In the final period, Ed Panagabko scored two goals for Hershey before Doug McCurdy and George Bouchard countered for Springfield.

LIFE BEGINS AT 86 FOR HANEY FIVEPINNER

HANEY, B.C. (CP)—At the age of 86, John Mitchell bowled a 410 fivepin game here—just 40 pins short of a perfect score.

He had played lacrosse in Fergus, Ont., as a youngster and had done a lot of curling and a year ago became a member of a fivepin league.

"Bowling is the finest exercise in the world," he said. "It keeps me young. I eat what I want when I want it and have always been a heavy smoker."

PORT-SIDE PINCH-HITTER

Bums Seek Big Stone In Rebuilding Plans

NEW YORK (UP)—Right now, the horseshoe nail that might lose or win the battle for Brooklyn in defence of its National League pennant this year seems to be a left-handed pinch-hitter.

At least that's the impression one gets at Dodger headquarters, where there's actually more talk about a portside clutch guy than about Roy Campanella's surgically sculptured hands.

For example, vice-president Buzzie Bavasi said today, "as we look toward spring training, our immediate concern is a left-handed pinch hitter."

The retirement of Dale Mitchell after the world series, to go into business, left the pinch-hitting gap. And the question now is whether any one of six possibilities can fill it.

The half-dozen mentioned are: Pitcher Don Newcombe, catcher Rube Walker, infielder

Joey Wins But Randy No Pansy

CHICAGO (AP)—The 5-to-1 odds went to Joey Giardello's head Wednesday night.

Joey, the overwhelming favorite, was lucky to get a split 10-round decision over Randy Sandy in a Chicago stadium bout.

He didn't look anything like the No. 2 ranking middleweight that he is. A ferocious last two rounds saved the victory for him.

Under the five-point system of scoring, referee Walt Brightmore voted for Giardello 48-44 and Judge Frank McAdams favored him 47-45. Judge Frank Clare called it for Sandy, 47-46. The AP card had it 48-46 for Giardello, who outweighted Sandy 159% to 157%.

"I trained well for this fight, but I just couldn't get my second wind," said Joey, who last September sledged top-ranked Bobby Boyd into submission in five rounds.

Giardello may have another fight, possibly a rematch with Sandy, before the International Boxing Club lines him up for the winner of the Spider Webb-Neal Rivers bout Feb. 15 in New York.

At stake is a title shot in June against Gene Fullmer or Ray Robinson.

Bathgate Gains In Point Derby

By The Canadian Press

Andy Bathgate of New York scored a goal and an assist Wednesday to climb into a tie with Norm Ullman of Detroit for fourth place in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Bathgate was the only one of the league's top scorers to advance. Montreal players who hold down three of the top eight spots were held pointless in a 1-1 tie with Toronto.

Four Bouts Set On Grapple Bill

Pairings for the male half of tonight's professional wrestling card at Victoria Ballroom will send Sammy Menacker against Leo Numa in a 30-minute special bout and Pat Sherman against Gordy Gordienko in the opening bout.

Heading the program is a clash between women's champion June Byers and Penny Banner. Barbara Baker takes on Betty Jo Hawkins in a 45-minute semi-main event. Action starts at 8.30.

Mounties Sell Metkovich To Charleston

VANCOUVER (CP)—George Metkovich, outfielder who was rated Vancouver Mounties' No. 1 player in their first season in the Pacific Coast League in 1956, has been sold to Charleston of the American Association.

General Manager Cedric Tallis announced the sale today. In 1955 he led PCL hitters with a .335 average while with Los Angeles but dropped to .294 last year.

Reports here said there was some doubt whether Metkovich would report to Charleston. He owns a restaurant near Los Angeles and may retire from baseball.

13-Year Old Scores 81 In Palm Beach Amateur

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UP)—Just when folks along the winter golf circuit were beginning to talk about young Ann Quast of Marysville, Wash., along came 13-year-old Sharon Fladoos, an eighth-grade student from Dubuque, Ia., to steal the thunder.

Little Miss Fladoos, a semifinalist in last year's national junior championships, startled the staid golf fans in this winter resort town yesterday when she chalked up an 81 in the opening round of the 39th annual Palm Beach women's amateur golf tournament. While the score was not too spectacular, it was good enough to eliminate the veteran Joanne Goodwin of Haverhill, Mass., one up, in a tinging match that was decided on the 18th hole.

The hapful youngster, who didn't stick around long enough to see her score posted, was matched with another veteran today in the second round—Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore, Md., who advanced by beating Mrs. Harold Stone of Ware Shoals, S.C., 2 and 1.

Miss Quast, the 19-year-old west coast star who has been somewhat of a sensation on the current tour, moved up by beating Maureen Riley of New-castle, Pa., 4 and 3. Today she plays defending champion Mrs. Ann Johnstone of Mason City,

Nanaimo Pupils Build Houses on Schoolyard

NANAIMO (CP)—Senior high school students are gaining practical experience by building houses on the school grounds.

The scheme, launched five years ago with the approval of the British Columbia education department, has the blessing of trade unions and building contractors.

Students have already built four houses and now are working on a fifth—a 900-square-foot six-room dwelling.

Supervised by carpenter-instructor Jack Parker, the boys do all the work from the blueprint stage right up to the finished product.

When finished in May the house, which has about $3,500 worth of materials in it, will be put up for sale by the school board to recover the cost.

Builders welcome the idea because it provides the companies with a reservoir of labor from which they can draw skilled labor and potential foremen.

At present 22 youths are on the job. Classes are divided between university and general program students.

Pt. Alberni Corrects 50-Year-Old Error

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—An error nearly 50 years old is to be corrected here, permitting development of nearly 100 acres of valuable property in the city, according to plans discussed by council.

Council authorized a survey of perimeter road allowances in the area from Anderson Avenue to 21st Avenue, and from China Creek Road to Dry Creek Gully, in order to correct overlapping surveys dating from 1907.

The city will purchase property belonging to the provincial government, while titles of lots owned by four individuals will be turned over to an impartial trustee and will be reconveyed when the boundaries of the area have been clarified.

Campbell River Youth Fined on Liquor Counts

NANAIMO (CP)—Nineteen-year-old Duncan Hodges of Campbell River was fined $50 on each of two liquor charges.

He was convicted of buying a half-gallon of wine and of entering a beer parlor.

Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts ordered the fines and $7 in costs paid immediately so that Hodges would "learn the hard way." In default of payment, Hodges will serve 30 days on each count.

IMPORTANT TO MOTHERS of Pre-School Children!

They're growing, going concerns, aren't they? Busy exploring their small world from all-too early morning till reluctant bedtime. Busy growing out of all their clothes... usually gaining five pounds, and shooting up three inches, each year! No wonder these trigger-gear youngsters need lots of protein every day... because you know protein is the body's most important building material... and a vital source of energy.

To help make sure your child is getting all the life-giving protein he needs the makers of Pablum have been working for almost two years on a new form of cereal food. Like all the Pablum products your Doctor recommends, this newest Pablum has been formulated with scientific skill, to meet rigid medical standards. It is introduced to you mothers only after thorough and careful testing.

THIS NEW PABLUM IS

Containing 35% Protein

Your Doctor can tell you that this concentrated protein in new Pablum Protein Cereal Food is ideal for your pre-school children. These youngsters need about four times as much protein as you do, per pound of body weight. Yet they have a limited food capacity, and may not eat enough food to give them this necessary daily amount. That is why you mothers will welcome new Pablum Protein Cereal Food, as a simple, palatable source of the protein that's so vital in every child's every-day diet!

New Pablum Protein Cereal Food has a delightful, delicately nutlike flavour... and a smooth creamy consistency... that will make it a favourite with your small fry. You'll like it too—and you'll appreciate the fact that it's pre-cooked... quick and easy to fix. Just mix with hot or cold milk or cream, add a little salt and sweeten to taste.

So start serving Pablum Protein Cereal Food at your house tomorrow. Make it a rule for breakfast, serve it sometimes for lunch, or for healthy snacks any time of day! Your little busybodies are so extra alive, they need that abundance of protein—and they'll enjoy it—in new Pablum Protein Cereal Food!

Church Opposes Fire Hall Site

Pandora Green Plan Protested
By Christian Scientist Leaders

The Christian Science Church has advised Mayor Percy Scourrah it will fight any attempt to build the new city fire hall on Pandora Green.

The mayor said he has been contacted with several other sources all opposed to use of the green, as was suggested by Fire Chief Frank Briers.

At the same time, the mayor pointed out even if a site for a new hall is indefinite, it will not deter him from asking council on Friday to authorize a March 9 vote on the erection of a hall. "I will ask council to request public approval for spending of up to $300,000 for that purpose," he stated.

Tuesday the mayor had estimated $250,000 would build the hall, but added, authoritative studies and estimates have not yet been made.

SUPPORTS CHURCH
The mayor said he was in sympathy with the Christian Science Church in opposing the use of Pandora Green.

"I don't want to see it there myself."

The choice of the site was made by the fire chief because of ready road access to all parts of the city. However, the green is one of Victoria's prime beauty spots and provides the round, white Christian Science Church with a beautiful setting, framed by green lawns and shade trees.

LAND SALES
The $300,000 for the new hall would come from the land sales fund which was set up primarily for reconstruction of Point Ellice Bridge.

If council agrees to the mayor's plan when it is presented Friday, the money by-law will

MAINLAND BUS, TRUCK COLLIDE; SIX INJURED

VANCOUVER (CP).—The driver and five passengers on a B.C. Electric trolley bus were injured Wednesday night when the bus and a 40-ton truck-and-trailer collided at an intersection.

Fourteen other passengers escaped injury. The vehicles, locked together by the impact, were carried about 100 feet, over a curb and into a cafe parking lot. Two parked cars were also damaged.

Only two of the injured required hospital treatment.

Driver Llewellyn Durkee, 46, Portland, who was with his brother, E. R. Durkee, was charged with disobeying a traffic light. He was driving toward the United States border with 24 tons of fish meal at the time.

Man Needs Day's Rest in Seven To Reevaluate, Says Clergyman

If a cow falls into a pit on Sunday, pull it out.

So said Rev. H. T. Allen of Vancouver, secretary of the Lord's Day Act for B.C., in an interview here Wednesday.

He was commenting on a recent judgment by Judge J. B. Clearhue who said "in the light of modern society, the time has arrived for modification of our Sunday laws."

Altogether apart from religion, said the Vancouver minister, man needs rest as it is now apportioned, one day in seven.

"Not one day in five — he doesn't need this — or one day in 10, which over-extends it; but one in seven," said Mr. Allen.

Only by resting on Sunday, he went on, is "the full humanity of man recognized."

Working during the week, the average individual hasn't time to be a philosopher, or look within himself to achieve personal values. Sunday grants this.

Mr. Allen stated: "I've buried just the mere muscles of the law, he said.

So great is the implication of one day in seven rest, he recalled, that in years gone by even slaves were granted this period.

Mr. Allen said there was a necessity for consistent interpretation of the act, both in B.C. and throughout Canada.

BRIBERY TRIAL ORDERED FOR VANCOUVER OFFICER

VANCOUVER (CP)—City police Sgt. Cecil McIntosh was committed for trial Wednesday on charges of accepting a bribe and obtaining money with the intent to protect a person from punishment. Foon Gun How testified that McIntosh had asked for money to forget a speeding offence.

Police Chief George Archer announced at the same time that McIntosh has been suspended "effective immediately" from active duty.

McIntosh was released on $1,500 bail.

Ex-Victorian, Wife Die 5 Hours Apart

LANGLEY (CP) — A double funeral will be held here Friday for an elderly Langley couple who died five hours apart Wednesday in separate hospitals.

John Pears, 85, former Victorian, died in Langley Memorial Hospital. His 80-year-old wife died in a nursing home. Mr. Pears' survivors include three brothers in Victoria, Charles, Wallace and Guy. Mrs. Pears leaves two brothers, Eustace Arden, of Sooke, and Percy Arden, of Victoria.

Originator of Bugs Bunny Dies at Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joseph (Bugs) Hardaway, 66, film cartoon idea man who helped create such cartoon characters as Bugs Bunny and Woody the Woodpecker, died of a heart attack Monday.

Hardaway, former cartoonist for the old Kansas City Post, served as sergeant under Capt. Harry Truman in the former president's field artillery outfit during the First World War.

Hardaway gave his nickname to the rabbit character he developed as story man for Warner Brothers cartoons which he joined in 1933.

CPR FREIGHTER AGROUND FOR HOUR AT UCLUELET

The CPR's west coast freighter, Mv Princess of Alberni ran aground in Ucluelet harbor at 5 a.m. today, but managed to work herself off in about an hour.

She moved into dockside and at press time was awaiting a three-man salvage survey crew from Island Tug & Barge.

Headed by salvage superintendent Jack McLaughlin and including diver Jack Daly, the team will conduct under water survey for possible damage before the ship attempts to carry on to other west coast ports.

Island Tug was also called in when a small Vancouver beach-combing vessel, the Fancy Free, caught fire in Halkett Bay, Gable Island, in the Howe Sound area this morning.

Two men aboard were rescued by another small vessel, Island Tug dispatched the tug Island Commander to the scene, but the burning vessel was so far gone she sank when the tug extinguished the flames with her fire-fighting equipment.

MONTE ROBERTS

The Canadian Press reports from Winnipeg that Dr. Morgan Wright of the University of Manitoba psychology department says winter weather saps a person's strength and induces a depressive feeling known as the "winter blues."

"To the best of my knowledge Winnipeg is a good place to report about winter from. In fact, it has been said Winnipeg has even more winter than Victoria, although how this could be, I cannot fathom."

Victoria has quite enough winter for one and all, even though it is reputed to be the place spring comes first to but when?

It is now time to get back to Dr. Morgan Wright's views on the winter blues.

"That lazy feeling," he states, "is nothing but a depletion of physical resources. The cold has sapped our strength. We wear 10 extra pounds of clothing. Walking through wind and snow takes extra effort. We move continually from extremes of heat and cold."

So far, Dr. Wright, I am right with you, and you are making me very happy.

Up until now, I thought the reason for my lazy feeling was that I was lazy.

Now I know the truth, and I am a better man for it. (Turn off the alarm clock, mother, I am stricken with the winter blues.)

But, as the good doctor continues his thesis, he tends to lose me.

He suggests many people try to escape the winter blues by going to parties.

"Because their spirits are low they drink and smoke more than usual. This only makes them weaker. It's a vicious circle."

That's where I don't dig the doctor. If that lazy feeling is due to winter, what are people doing, going to parties in winter?

I have never seen a party yet which was a fit place for a man with the true attributes of laziness.

Unless it were an opium party, and I hear tell such parties are highly illegal.

Then Dr. Wright gets around to handing out some advice, and once again I am right with him.

Advise me: "Smoke less and drink less. When you get home at night take it easy. Don't worry if you haven't any energy."

At current prices for drinks and smokes (including the sales tax) a man has no choice but to drink less and smoke less.

And as for taking it easy when I get home nights, and not worrying about lack of energy, this just naturally comes natural to me.

I'm afraid, though, the doctor and I part company once again with his closing remark:

"You'll be a new and better man when the world wakes up in the spring."

Let the world wake up in the spring, doctor. This boy has already laid his plans for his annual attack of spring fever, which is an even better reason for laziness than the winter blues.

And no psychologist is going to talk me out of it.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

A series of lectures on fundamentals of metallurgy, sponsored by the Vancouver Island chapter of the American Society for Metals, starts here Wednesday, Feb. 13, at 8 p.m. in Central Junior High School.

Speaker will be R. D. Barer, P. Eng. He will lecture at the same time Feb. 20, 27, March 6, and March 13.

There will be a charge for lecture attendances.

City firemen answered a call to B.C. Forest Products sawdust plant at 4:50 p.m. Wednesday when a flash fire threatened the premises. Fire was extinguished without damage.

Saanich may be asked to pay a larger share of maintenance of city-owned parks in that municipality. Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee now is financed by the two municipal councils with Saanich paying one-third.

Victoria parks administrator W. H. Warren has proposed sharing should now be based on population, which would mean Saanich would pay over 40 per cent. Council parks committee will study the matter.

Chief of Naval Staff's commendation for bravery was presented Wednesday to AB Rich and Metcalfe, 21, cook aboard HMCS Cordova.

Metcalfe saved the life of a shipmate, William Skrypetz, when he fell from a jetty at Port Hardy last July.

Ladies Auxiliary to the Mt. Tolibee Club and Scouts will meet in Shelbourne St. Scout Hall tonight at 8:30.

Some 25 wardens of the Greater Victoria area will attend the first of three lectures on evacuation planning at Civil Defence headquarters Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Lectures will be given by chief warden Barrie Gault and chief instructor Bob Abbott.

All main highways on Vancouver Island were reported today by the highways department as "fair," and sanded where necessary.

Victoria police and firemen's unions have both spurned a 5 per cent wage increase offered by council. Mayor Percy Scourrah said today.

Both unions have requested wage increases of 15 per cent. The mayor said both are asking a new offer from the city.

First class firemen and policemen receive $332.94 a month at present.

Health Minister Eric Martin today announced a grant of $3,309 to the Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria, to help defray cost of renovation and repairs. The Royal Jubilee is one of 13 B.C. hospitals receiving grants totalling $8,751, forming one-third of the cost involved.

Elsewhere on Vancouver Island, the Rest Haven Hospital at Sidney gets $1,348; King's Daughters, Duncan, $872; Cumberland General, $504.

Recreational activities arranged for members of the Victoria Aged Pensioners' Association No. 3 for February begin Friday with bowling at Strathcona Alleys at 9:30 a.m.

Other activities include bowling at Gibson's Bowladrome Monday, Feb. 11, at 9:30 a.m., attendance at the hockey game at Memorial Arena Monday, Feb. 18, at 8 p.m., and attendance at the Royal Theatre Thursday, Feb. 21, at 1 p.m.

City police picked up a hit-run suspect Wednesday night, a few minutes after two cars were smashed near Hillside and Prior, by following a trail of radiator water from the scene to the suspect's car.

Cars owned by Annie M. McCarter, 2022 Lorne, and Millicent L. Rose, 315 Wilson, were heavily damaged. Const. Douglas Grant followed the water trail and alerted Saanich police, whose Const. Frank Briers located the suspected car with a damaged radiator.

Three Sidney youngsters who appeared in juvenile court Wednesday were each fined $10 and costs for driving without licences. One was placed on probation for three months as a condition of sentence.

Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Wilkinson . . . make-up before sundown.

CREWS WORK ALL NIGHT CLEARING E & N MALAHAT SLIDE

A slide of rock and snow on the Malahat, that blocked the E & N Railway at 1 p.m. Wednesday, was cleared at 6:30 a.m. today, according to D. C. Hartley, superintendent.

He said southbound passengers on the Dayliner rail car were returned to Duncan, where a bus brought them to Victoria. Today's passengers were taken to Duncan by bus so the Dayliner could leave that station on schedule.

The slide occurred immediately south of the railway tunnel on the Malahat. Crews worked all night to clear the rails, Mr. Hartley said.

City Zoo Would Be Animal 'Showplace'

If Victoria council agrees to relocation here of Paul Hertel's Port Alberni zoo, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow will recommend it be restricted to a showplace for animals only.

After touring "Featherland," the bird showplace of Cecil Hyndman at 1848 Burnside today, the alderman said he felt the city tourist industry would benefit by maintaining the exclusive nature of the two attractions.

He said both should receive equal publicity by the city.

TOURED FEATHERLAND

The alderman toured Featherland after hearing complaints at his action in viewing the Port Alberni zoo and recommending the city assist in bringing it to Victoria. Mr. Hertel's zoo contains lions, cougars, and native B.C. animals as well as many foreign birds.

Some sources felt bringing the entire zoo here would be detrimental to the locally-sponsored "Featherland."

Mayor Percy Scourrah indicated today he would oppose the alderman's suggestion.

"Nobody gets an exclusive in a free enterprise country," he stated.

Mr. Hertel has offered his zoo as an attraction for the city-owned Thetis Lake Park.

Ald. Edgelow will recommend to council Friday that the city finance the move and establishment of the Hertel zoo "as a loan to be repaid."

He felt the financing could be done through the proposed sale of timber which is to be selectively logged in back areas of the park this year.

The logging was authorized by council last year and has been awaiting a better log market.

FRIDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Lions: Empress Hotel, noon luncheon. S.V.R.D. Higgins will speak on "Your Tax Dollar and the Reserve Forces."

Canadian Diabetic Association, Victoria and district branch: St. Joseph's Hospital, nurses' auditorium, 7:45 p.m. Vancouver Island Rabbit Breeders: Rosedale Hall, 8 p.m.

English-Speaking Union: Victoria College, room 210, 8 p.m. Brian Roberts will speak on "Africa, Land of Controversy."

THOSE DUMB KIDS! I'LL BET IF I WERE A POLAR BEAR, THEY'D NEVER THROW SNOWBALLS AT ME!

BUT WIFE CAN DO WHAT SHE LIKES—HE SAYS

55 Years Married, He's Allowed 24 Ashtrays

By DINAH KERR

Josiah Wilkinson says, "I let my wife do whatever she likes."

Fanny Wilkinson says, "We

both do as we like, dear. We agree on everything."

And that is how the Wilkinsons account for 55 years of married happiness they'll celebrate Friday.

This "live and let live" philosophy extends to Mr. Wilkinson's 24 ash trays scattered through their living room and kitchen at 96 Cadilac.

"He couldn't live without his pipe," says his wife, 79. (She still smokes cigars "now and again.")

"This is his home and he can do as he wants. I've had him for 55 years and I would not have anyone else."

While Mrs. Wilkinson sat placidly in her chair by the fireplace, Mr. Wilkinson, 81, skipped about like Peter Pan and demanded that the truth be told.

"He's still a big tease," said Fanny Wilkinson. "You have no idea. He'll get out of bed and dance around like he was a two-year-old."

Mrs. Wilkinson is recuperating from a seven-month stint in hospital when her weight dropped from 153 lbs. to 96 lbs.

A tiny woman, her dresses are six inches too big around the waist. Even her doctor teases her about it. "He says he's going to get me down to my girlish figure," Mrs. Wilkinson said.

Married in London, Eng., the Wilkinsons emigrated to Calgary in 1911. When Mr. Wilkinson retired from the Imperial Tobacco Co. in 1941, they moved to Victoria.

Josiah and Fanny Wilkinson have one word of advice for young married couples: "Never let the sun go down on your wrath. You'll have a good night's rest that way."

Bridge Traffic Plans Studied

Shipyard Work Hours May Be Staggered

By PETE LOUDON

A two-pronged plan, aimed at avoiding crippling traffic jams on Johnson Street Bridge when Point Ellice Bridge is demolished in April, is under study at city hall.

Experts fear the worst tie-up in Victoria's history could result if plans aren't made to alleviate congestion during the three-month re-construction period.

Mayor Percy Scourrah and city engineer James Garnett have two plans for solving the problem.

1. Ask Yarrows Ltd. and HMC Dockyard to stagger hours of work so workers would cross Johnson Street bridge an hour apart.

2. Ask Capt. Ronald Newell, harbor master, to ensure that the bridge will not be opened at rush hours during the Point Ellice bridge construction period. (The harbor master thinks an arrangement can be made.)

It is estimated about 1,600 cars will try crossing the Johnson Street bridge in peak rush hour periods, twice a day.

1,000 AN HOUR

Bridge capacity is strained now with 1,000-an-hour flow to and from Esquimalt industrial areas.

At present, over 600 cars travel westbound over Point Ellice bridge between 7 and 8 a.m. daily and eastbound between 4 and 5 p.m.

The Johnson Street bridge carries about 1,000 cars an hour in the same rush periods, on the one-way journey. The cars are often bumper-to-bumper.

4-MILE DETOUR

Only other route across the Gorge this side of Craigflower is via the Tillicum bridge, which is also carrying near-capacity traffic at rush times and is a four-mile detour for traffic normally using the other bridges.

The possibility that 1,600 cars will try to cross Johnson Street bridge in a one-hour period makes traffic experts shudder.

The slowdown forced on the home-bound traffic by downtown traffic lights would mean a solid stream of cars between downtown and Esquimalt centre.

Traffic attempting to enter Esquimalt Road or Johnson Street would be certain to be stalled for long periods.

The necessity to open the Johnson Street bridge during morning rush hours has meant as many as 400 workers have been late for their jobs and many have had their pay docked.

The city has no control over seaway traffic.

Premier Asked To Match Aid For New Span

Ottawa to Pay City $108,000

Mayor Percy Scourrah has made application to Premier Bennett for $128,000 toward cost of the Point Ellice Bridge, it was learned today.

He said he is hoping a provincial grant will be made to match grants confirmed this week by the federal government department of transport and the Canadian National Railway.

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant was non-committal today when asked if the city request would be met. During the recent provincial election campaign he promised the province would meet the federal grant dollar-for-dollar.

"We are very pleased to know the bridge is going ahead and will earnestly consider this grant," he said. "I can't give you a flat statement now—it will have to go through normal channels."

GRANT APPROVED

Board of Transport Commissioners at Ottawa Wednesday authorized payment of $108,218 toward the cost of Point Ellice Bridge.

Earlier this week the Canadian National Railway confirmed it would pay $20,000 to the same project.

Both contributions were negotiated by Mayor Scourrah during a visit to Ottawa last fall, by virtue of a recent amendment to the Railways Act which places some responsibility for bridges over railways with the DOT and Canadian railways.

Contracts for the bridge construction total $629,644. The two grants will reduce the cost to the city to just over $500,000.

If the B.C. grant materializes, the bridge will cost in vicinity of $400,000—almost $150,000 less than was anticipated at the time the $550,000 bridge money by-law was passed last April.

He was arrested Dec. 22 and has been in custody since.

Pedestrian Clement S. Gibbs, 72, 408 Rayner, died after being struck by Parkinson's truck at Rayner and Craigflower. Accused was arrested after investigation by city and RCMP officers.

Magistrate H. C. Hall said in passing sentence:

"The only charge is that you failed to remain. The usual practice in B.C. in usual circumstances is to impose a fine . . .

"In this case, however, it must have been apparent to you, you struck this man a heavy blow and apparent his injury was serious."

"You must have realized from the force of the blow there was little you could do. I still regard the fact that he was struck a heavy blow."

Fine Food and Mellow Music

(Fourth in a Series)

A friend who is taking off for a Honolulu vacation next week stopped me yesterday and asked: "Where should I eat? And how much should I pay?"

The answer, of course, is that you can buy anything from a hamburger to a Chateaubriand (for two) at $12.

Generally speaking, food prices are a shade lower than Montreal, New York, New Orleans or San Francisco.

The top restaurants seem to have arrived at an understanding: $3.50 for a roast beef dinner, $5 for steak.

Surprisingly enough, one of the best restaurants in town is operated by the Salvation Army, but don't look for it under that name in the telephone book. It's called the Waiohi Tea Room. It's up in the hills behind the city but worth every cent of the $2 it will cost you to get there by taxi.

Set (as many Honolulu places are) amid a rich jungle of palms, ferns, hibiscus and tinkling fountains, the lava-stoned bungalow has a wide lanai (porch) and inner court just bulging with wholesome goodies. You start with a punch—non-alcoholic, of course—and proceed to make your own salad at a buffet.

There follows an elegant roast chicken, served by one of the slice-eyed beauties from the Girls' Home, who learn domestic science as a project with the Sally Ann.

"The end," as the saddle-shoe set is saying, is a desert table whose chiffon pies, all home-baked, look like a miniature Coast Range, and layer cakes whose calorie count must be astronomical. Take all you want: $2. The literati like to stroll behind to visit a grass hut where Robert Louis Stevenson is alleged to have grappled with the muse.

At Trader Vic's, the specialite de la mission is a "scorpion," served in a bowl with a floating orchid, and so-called because four persons can drink from it simultaneously, from colorful nylon straws. Here you can also buy a sumptuous shrimp or prawn dish, on which they'll sprinkle condiments as varied as chopped bacon and peanuts.

At a place called The Willows, you sit beneath Polynesian thatched roofs and watch the groupers cavort in a lagoon at the side of your table. The Gourmet, on the main street of Waikiki, has Parisian decor and good food. Woody's, in the downtown Hawaiian Life Insurance building, is a superior cafeteria with an interesting chandelier made out of tea-kettles and antique scattered liberally about.

The most-talked-about place, of course, is Henry Kaiser's Hawaiian Village, with palm trees sprouting up through the floor and a beach so attractive it appears almost artificial—which it is.

Mr. Kaiser, as usual, has done things boldly, and in a hurry. A night-shift is busily rivetting steel for a new addition and a 1,900-seat auditorium will shortly offer symphony.

At the Village, you can hear Alfred Apaka ("The Bing Crosby of the Islands") and wish he would sing more of his native music. In the Shell Room, which adjoins, you can also hear some startling modern music led by an urbane bass player named Joe Mullan, and consisting of Hammond organ, electric guitar and bongos.

Mr. Mullan plays off-beat stuff like "The March of the Siamese Children" from "The King and I" and "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue." Quite the most exciting new music we'd heard in a decade.

Doll's Wardrobe Adaptable To Busy Social Life, Too

By PENNY SAVER

Remember Suzie? She's the pert little walking doll that has the charming open-and-shut eyes, long sari pants and exciting doll wardrobe. She's been at the dressmakers again, and has come home with a whole raft of new clothes. The latest includes a pink snugly snow suit, $1.79 and a hat, coat and purse set, 98 cents. The coat is a small black and white check and the hat, of red felt accented with side flowers. There's a farm outfit, blue denim and plaid shirt selling at $1.29. Frilly and frivolous is the bridesmaid dress of frothy net. There's a headdress and tiny bouquet, all for $1.39. She's getting to be one of the best-dressed dolls in the city.

Larger sized sweaters are rather hard to find in town, so those of you who take up to a size 48 in sweater will be happy to know of soft wool cardigans being sold by a local store. There is rose, green, blue, grey, navy and black from which to choose. The price is right at $7.95.

Blouses are the last word in casual and dressy fashions this season. For wear with your favorite capri pants or a smart skirt, here are comfortable, soft blouses in grey or brown. Three-quarter sleeves, a button-down front and collar and the softness of the blousing caused by the drawstring at waist or hips are all selling points of these attractive blouses. These, in a warm, easily laundered material are $4.95.

Definitely casual and wonderful with slacks and a car coat are these wool jersey blouses fashioned with warm, top-fashion hoods. The waistlines are nipped in with the popular drawstring. These come in black, light brown and blue, and are priced at $3.88.

From Italy are the pottery plates that would please any hostess. They're designed and hand-made especially for a Canadian firm. Round, they are perfect watermelon slices. When you're entertaining a small group, these serve as luncheon plates or serving plates, and either way are compliment-getters. You'll love them just as I did. They're yours for $1.75 each. (A few hints dropped to the man-in-the-house might result in a watermelon Valentine gift.)

WHEN MAY BRIDE AND GROOM LEAVE RECEPTION?

When I am married in the spring, we plan to have a family breakfast at noon following the ceremony. Then we want a reception later, say from 4 to 8 p.m., so that we will have time to have photographs taken. We want to leave the reception at 8 p.m. Inasmuch as we don't expect people to leave promptly at that hour, would it be permissible for us to leave at that time without being rude? Is a reception from 4 to 8 all right, or is it socially incorrect?

Louise Davis answers:

I suggest that you have your reception hours "from four until seven." Should you stipulate "from four until eight," the guests might think that you will be serving dinner. The earlier hour would indicate just light refreshments. It is quite correct and proper that a bride and bridegroom leave early if they wish to. Most of them do while the guests are still present. Stay long enough to greet all the guests, to cut the cake and to partake of refreshments if you wish. You are not obligated to remain. You and the young man are not host and hostess. You are in an entirely different category as very special guests of honor. The world is yours for the day, and you need not feel apologetic by leaving at your own convenience.

Exercise for Abdomen, Shoulders Beneficial to All

Already my mail is beginning to indicate that many of you on the marathon are showing marked improvement in your health, beauty and attitudes toward life. This gives me such a thrill! All I can say is keep up the good work.

Today I would like to offer a few exercises which will benefit all women whether on the marathon or not. These exercises will be beneficial for the whole family, too.

I would never say that doing one exercise is just as good as another when you wish to reduce your hips or your abdomen or waist, because I know it "ain't so." However, there are some exercises which are universally important for men, women and children because they counteract the natural tendency we have to give in to gravity and poor posture.

For instance, strong abdominal muscles are important to all of us, both from the standpoint of health and good looks. Also, the tendency is to slump through the shoulders, especially at teen age and at middle age.

So today I would like to give you an exercise for the abdomen and one for the shoulders. And remember, it is more fun to do exercises with others than to do them alone.

To strengthen the abdominal muscles: Lie on the floor on your back. Your arms rest on the floor overhead. Bend both knees up close to the abdomen. Grasp the knees with the hands and pull back. Slowly return arms to overhead position as you stretch your legs toward the ceiling and lower them to the floor. Continue. This should be done slowly and with control.

For the shoulders: Stand tall with your arms at your sides. Raise your arms forward, shoulder height and shoulder width apart, palms facing. Briskly, swing your arms backward and turn the palms toward the back of the room. In a relaxed manner bring your arms forward again to the shoulder height, shoulder width apart position. Continue. The return to the starting position should be relaxed but the swing-back should be vigorous.

It still is not too late to join the marathon. If you would like to lose 20 pounds in eight weeks or diminish any defects you may have, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the marathon booklet. Address

Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

THE WORLD'S MOST MODERN WASHER 1957 FILTER-FLO BY

GENERAL ELECTRIC

Only clean water can wash clothes clean. Filter-Flo by General Electric actually cleans the water as it cleans your clothes. Lint, sand, soap scum are constantly being filtered away while your clothes are being washed. Don't wash dirt into your clothes—wash dirt out with G-E's modern Filter-Flo Washer.

This great advance in automatic washers is yet another example of General Electric's constant efforts to bring you tomorrow's engineering today. Every day, extensive research is going on in the G-E laboratories; research that creates the best possible product at the lowest possible cost for you. That's why, when you buy any G-E Automatic Washer you know you're buying the finest — the most modern — the greatest value for your money.

THE WORLD'S MOST MODERN WASH-DRY TEAM

G-E FILTER-FLO WASHER Model No. WA-857P G-E CLOTHES DRYER Model No. PDA-820

FILTER-FLO

Removes lint, sand and soap scum. Full tub circulates and filters at the rate of six gallons every minute. Before lint can settle on your clothes, before washed-out dirt can get back in, they're caught in the removable filter.

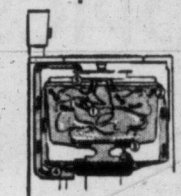

G-E CONTROL DIAL

Simply dial the required washing cycle for all types of fabrics. Both normal and short cycles are on the one dial. Choose from one to fifteen minutes for normal wash—one to four minutes for delicate fabrics.

G-E CONTROL PANEL

Allows you to give fabrics the exact amount of washing action needed. Gives the correct spin speed—temperature—heat—cold rinse. And the G-E Suds Return Control allows you to save hot, sudsy water and re-use it again.

G-E FILTER-FLO WASHER ACTION

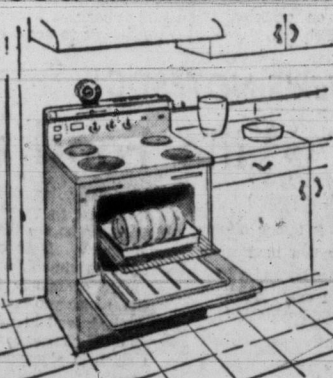

1. Mighty Activator action removes the dirt from clothes. 2. Filter-Flo removes the dirt from the wash water. Lint, soap and scum are carried out of the washbasket as water continuously overflows into outer tub. 3. Sand and silt are forced out at bottom of washbasket. 4. Pump continuously circulates water up and through filter. 5. Cleaned, sudsy water flows back into washbasket.

LINT FREE

Here's proof-positive. After 7 washings in an ordinary washer, the sock at the left was flecked with unsightly lint. After 7 washings in the G-E Filter-Flo washer, a similar sock (right)—washed in identical, lint-producing load—showed practically no lint!

New MLA Would Improve Conditions for the Aged and the Sick

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Eight years ago, a quiet speaking, pleasant faced woman first came to Victoria with her husband Rupert Haggen, CCF member of the Legislative Assembly from Grand Forks-Greenwood.

With other legislative wives she sat in the ladies' gallery at the Parliament Buildings during the days of the session. She attended social functions planned for those wives who came from different parts of British Columbia. In her own friendly way she made many friends.

Today, when the Legislature opened, that same woman took her place—not in the gallery but on the floor of the House for Louis Haggen now represents Grand Forks-Greenwood in the Legislative Assembly.

It was late last year that Rupert Haggen, because of ill health that made it impossible for him to assume all the responsibilities of office, decided to retire. Immediately it was suggested that Lois Haggen run for the office.

As she talked to me in her room in the Parliament Buildings yesterday, Mrs. Haggen gave all the credit for her decision to accept and the fact that she was elected to her husband.

"It was my husband who persuaded me to do it," she says proudly. "He helped me all the way. As I went about my constituency during the days before the election it was a joy to me to hear the people speak so highly of him. It has given me an added incentive to do a good job down here."

A winning smile brings Lois Haggen many friends.

Mr. Haggen has come to Victoria with his wife and for the days of the session will be a patient in Gorge Road Hospital. How did Lois Haggen first become interested in public life? "When the CCF was formed away back in 1933," she reminisces. "We both became interested. My husband went into office and I became active in local CCF groups."

As the years progressed and her husband's health broke, Lois Haggen took more and more responsibility until in the last year or so she had become his spokesman in many matters. "An invaluable experience that will be of much assistance to me now," she says quietly.

Don't think that as an MLA Lois Haggen will be merely a rubber stamp of her husband. She will, no doubt, press for many of the things dear to his heart. But she has also several projects of her own that she will push during the days of the session.

Special treatment for sex criminals; lowering of the age limit for old age pension to 65 and putting the practical nurses act into force are some of the problems on her mind.

A "nasty incident" in the interior recently involving a sex criminal has worried Mrs. Haggen's constituents and they have asked her to bring up the matter.

Regarding the practical nurses act Lois Haggen says, "There is one in British Columbia but it has never been put into force." She feels that sick people should be protected from incompetents but at the same time she also thinks practical nurses should be protected in their profession.

There is a firmness in her voice when she speaks of senior citizens between the ages of 65 and 70 as "the forgotten people." "I feel strongly that those five forgotten years should be looked after and by the government at both provincial and federal levels."

Mrs. Haggen also feels that pensioners should be allowed to collect their money anywhere in the world. "Anyone who has reached the age of 70 has made their contribution to life here and if they want to live elsewhere, they should still get their money," she says.

As she talks of these projects a sadness touches her face. "You know, these are the things that Ernest Winch wanted and that he fought for. I had hoped to have him beside me with good, sound advice. Now that he is gone, I must study very hard to be completely familiar with every phase of these subjects, in order to speak with authority."

On the matter of women in politics, Lois Haggen shakes her head sadly. "There are not nearly enough women in public life," she says. "I can't understand why more women—and men, for that matter—are not interested in politics."

"The women who have been in politics in British Columbia are outstanding. There are many more experienced women in the province who could play just as good a part, but they seem hesitant to assert themselves and to take responsibility."

Born in Mobile, Alabama, Mrs. Haggen ("It's pronounced like 'haggis'") lived in Vancouver with her engineer husband for the first 16 years of their married life. Then they moved to the interior, where they now make their home in Grand Forks. They have three daughters and several grandchildren.

Today, as Mrs. Haggen sits in the front row on the opposition side of the House, she will find time to give a smile to the television camera. Not because she is anxious to appear on the screen, but because one of her sons-in-law, Bill Skelcher, is here as technical director with the CBC staff in charge of televising the opening of the Legislature for the first time in history.

Rename State Drawing Room The 'British Columbia Room'

The curtain went up yesterday evening on ceremonies surrounding the opening of the British Columbia Legislature, when His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor entertained at the first of two state dinners in Government House. The second will be held next Tuesday.

It was an all-male gathering this year but despite this fact there was much color to be found in the crimson and purple robes worn by the head of the clergy and in the dress uniforms of heads of the services.

White tie and tails and ribbons and decorations added the final touch of dignified elegance.

Hon. W. A. C. Bennett, Premier of British Columbia, headed the list of distinguished guests who were received before the dinner in the state drawing room, renamed recently by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor as the "British Columbia Room."

His Honor not only has renamed the room but he has added the necessary British Columbia touch by hanging a series of paintings of B.C. coast and woodland scenes on the cream-colored walls. These paintings include five done by the late Mrs. Fitzherbert Bullen, who was a descendant of the first governor of the province, Sir James Douglas.

Guests at the state dinner also found changes in the dignified long hall that connects the British Columbia room with the state dining room.

Here, life-sized paintings of former lieutenant-governors are hung. His Honor, noting that one incumbent was missing, Thomas Robert McInnes, who represented the Queen 1897 to 1900, had a painting done of Mr. McInnes and it is now hung with the others in the great hall. Included in the group are Richard Blanshard, Frederick Seymour and Sir James Douglas, who were governors before Confederation, as well as the 18 men who have held the office since 1871.

Hon. Frank Mackenzie Ross, CMG, M.C., will have his portrait painted and it will be hung beside the others when he retires from office.

Here, life-sized paintings of former lieutenant-governors are hung. His Honor, noting that one incumbent was missing, Thomas Robert McInnes, who represented the Queen 1897 to 1900, had a painting done of Mr. McInnes and it is now hung with the others in the great hall. Included in the group are Richard Blanshard, Frederick Seymour and Sir James Douglas, who were governors before Confederation, as well as the 18 men who have held the office since 1871.

Hon. Frank Mackenzie Ross, CMG, M.C., will have his portrait painted and it will be hung beside the others when he retires from office.

His Honor not only has renamed the room but he has added the necessary British Columbia touch by hanging a series of paintings of B.C. coast and woodland scenes on the cream-colored walls. These paintings include five done by the late Mrs. Fitzherbert Bullen, who was a descendant of the first governor of the province, Sir James Douglas.

Guests at the state dinner also found changes in the dignified long hall that connects the British Columbia room with the state dining room.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

By FREEMAN KING

Windsor Park "B" Pack: At the regular meeting held on Tuesday evening John Hutchinson was presented with his "first star." He also was invested as a Sixer by Akela Phyllis Sheffield. Roger Bapty received his "second" stripe. Terry Armstrong and Terry Buchhalt were welcomed as new chums to the pack.

Parkville Group: The bottle drive was postponed owing to the bad weather. Residents are asked to hold their bottles and scouts will collect them as soon as possible.

Third Victoria Group: The regular meeting of the committee, held at 1034 Johnson Street, was well attended. A membership committee was set up under the chairmanship of Gordon Woolridge and plans were made to hold a Baden-Powell evening with both the cubs and scouts attending at the Scout Hall, Kings Road. The group will hold its annual church parade on Sunday, Feb. 24.

Glanford Avenue Pack: Akela Jean Shemilt presented Jimmy Palmer with his artist badge. First-year service star went to Raymond Taylor. First and second star tests were carried out.

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary, at their meeting Thursday, planned to raise funds to buy equipment for the group.

Training Notes: The course held for scoutmasters last week end was under the leadership of assistant district commissioner Arthur Chamberlain with scouts Chris Pike and Bob Milks as assistants.

Oaklands Group: Both "A" and "B" packs were visited by the district Cubmaster, Harry Ward. The swimmer's badge was presented to John Clements of "B" pack.

NEW ARRIVALS: Male Labrador, black, about seven months old, red collar. Found in Oak Bay district.

READY FOR ADOPTION: Lassie would like—and deserves—a good home in the country. Of Labrador-German Shepherd parentage, she's a good-sized dog, many fine qualities. Spayed female, two years old.

Black spaniel, male, 18 months old. Happy little character as her name implies... just ask for Happy.

Spaniel cross, male, about two years. Shiny black coat, soft, friendly eyes. Mickey's the name.

Myrtle is a fine combination of spaniel and collie. Female, of course, about five months old.

Three months old, black and brown, sort of spaniel type. You name her. You can have her.

If there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then Ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Judy Matter, aged 9, of Milwaukee, Wis., for her question:

How Does an Ant Look When It Is Born?

A baby ant is never an only child. It begins life as a pale colored egg, about the size of a pin head. Other eggs are laid by the queen mother on the very same day. From the first, each batch of eggs is attended by a host of nurses. These are the worker ants who are really older, unmarried sisters. Any my! Do those worker ants love the babies!

The eggs are put in a pile to hatch in a cosy, dark chamber. The nurses are right there to help the tiny mites hatch out of their shells. The babies are soft, pale little grubs, shaped rather like those crooked-neck gourds. The curved, tapering end of the body ends in a tiny head. The little baby face has a mouth, jaws and lips. There are silk-making glands near the mouth. A baby ant has no eyes, for he needs none down there in the dark rooms of the nest.

The small bodies have signs of a dozen or so segments, but no feet. No feet are needed, for the doting nurses carry the little ones wherever they should go. The funny little fellows are absolutely helpless. The nurse ants tend them, feed them and pamper them. They are sorted into age groups, much like kindergarten, first, second and third grades. Each young ant is always with a group of companions in his own age group.

Often in a separate, dark, cosy chamber deep in the nest. Food for the youngsters depends on the normal diet of the ant family. Certain tropical ant babies are fed bits of meat, often from other insects. Our Carpenter ant babies are fed liquids coughed up by their nurses. Harvester ant babies are fed broken up bits of seed. Whatever the diet, it is the right one, and the young ant grubs grow and grow.

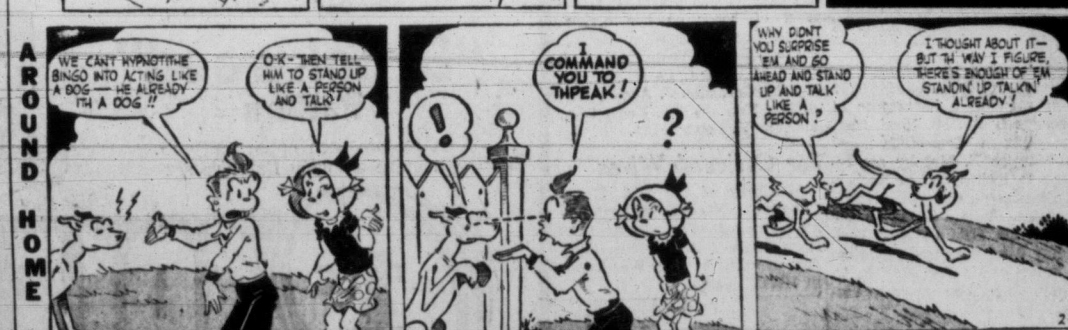

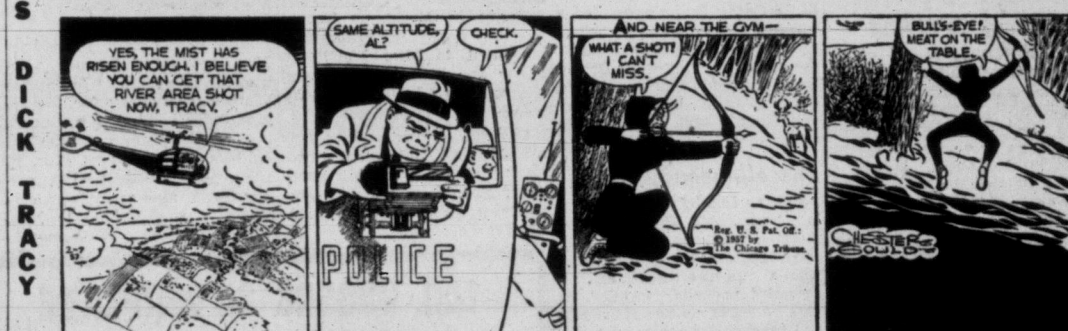

Comes a day when our batch of grub ants gets restless. Worker ants are on hand to help them into their next stage of development. This is the sleeping stage. The grubs bed themselves down in cocoons or chrysalises, depending upon the kind of ant they are. The cocoon ants are tenderly covered with loose dirt. This is necessary, for they have to stick the starting threads of cocoon-silk to crumbs of earth.

The operation is watched by the nurses. When it is finished, they lift out the cocoons, brush them off and store them away to sleep in peace. These are the larvae, like grains of rice, which you see when you break open an ant's nest. Some people mistake them for ant eggs which are, of course, much smaller. Watch how those worker ants rush the larvae to safety when trouble threatens the nest.

Inside the larvae, the little grubs are turning into grown-up ants. The nurses are right there to help when the time comes to hatch for the last time. This is the very last pampering the little ant will ever know. At first she is pale and rather weak looking. But she gets her strength and her proper color in a few days. Then begins her life of chores which goes on until she drops, worn out with weariness.

Thetis Camp Sites Offered in New Deal

An offer by the concessionaire of Thetis Lake Park to provide camp sites if the city supplies the materials, was tabled by public works committee Wednesday.

F. H. Boulter conditioned the offer on the proposal that the city should give him a five-year contract.

Here is a terrific picture for the whole family to enjoy together, which we can unreservedly recommend. The scenery of England, the "shuts" of London and its parentage, the humour and pathos of its "characters" all blend into a picture which will send you home having laughed a lot and cried a little. When two children run away to see the Coronation to decide whether the Queen actually does wear her crown "all the time" they run into adventures aplenty, especially when they look up Uncle Ben at Knightsbridge. Back as he prepares to ride out with the Governor's band, he is prepared to enjoy himself to the limit. Yes, it's Technicolor too.

I'm Not Here to Talk Business', Says Gordon After Seeing Bennett

Donald Gordon, 56-year-old president of Canadian National Railways, talked for an hour with Premier Bennett in the Legislative Buildings Wednesday.

THREE MISSIONS

"It was a pleasant talk and we discussed a number of things, including railways," burly Mr. Gordon told The Times afterwards.

Mr. Gordon laughed when reminded of a Vancouver newspaper report that the CNR may purchase the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, owned by the British Columbia government.

"I know nothing about that," he said. "In any case, I did not make this trip to talk big business."

Health Board to Name Own Group To Study Hospital Bed Shortage

A second civic committee to study Victoria hospital bed needs is expected to be named by Victoria-Esquimalt Union Board of Health on Tuesday.

A committee was named by Mayor Percy Scurrell last week following reports of waiting lists for hospital beds at Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals.

The mayor's committee will be headed by Ald. Arthur Dowell, and includes Ald. E. D. McEwen and city manager C. C. Wyatt.

The health board committee will comprise professional people closest to the problem.

MEMBERS

It is reported the members will be Royal Jubilee administrator George Masters; St. Joseph's medical administrator Dr. E. N. Boettcher; Saanich medical health officer Dr. A. N. Beattie; Oak Bay MHO Dr. Neil Stewart; Victoria-Esquimalt MHO Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy and board chairman G. K. Sammon.

The new committee will report its findings through the Union Board of Health to municipal councils.

TV Interference Petition Ready For Signing Soon

A petition asking for an effective remedy to TV interference here will be ready for circulation late next week, Saanich Voters' Association announced today.

The association executive agreed Wednesday night to sponsor the Greater Victoria petition, which will be similar to one suggested by the Victoria TV Interference Committee.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

FRIDAY, FEB. 8, 1957

"The Stars impel... They do not compel!"
What you make of your life is largely up to you."

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—Money matters can be worked out pretty much as you want them to be until noon. Then you will find that you can contact all companions, kin, business ties and get their ideas and approval. Be sure to complete errands.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Be just as personal as you like this morning. Get all dolled up and see those able to grant your desires. After noon you can concentrate upon the financial phases of the arrangements agreed upon this morning. Full speed ahead.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Spend the morning quietly and confidentially contacting intimates and experts and getting data and approval from them. P.M. then unusually good for being outspoken and direct about decisions arrived at earlier. Be social.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—Have you spoken to that staunch ally about giving you some aid in gaining your cherished longings? If not, this is your morning to do just that. After noon, however, retire to the private duties awaiting your attention.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Worldly matters of all kinds wisely occupy the period before noon. Get all dealings with the public or officials, executives as you want them. Later you find you can get together with friends and acquaintances and have a good time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Gaining additional data from newcomers as well as your newspaper, other sources of data rounds out your knowledge this morning. Then after noon excellent for going to authority able to give backing you need for making A.M. plan successful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Get your financial affairs in good shape during morning by paying bills, making collections and discussing ways to increase income. Then after noon you can get off to new sites, persons and acquire helpful information and/or have fun.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—You can arrive at real understanding with partners who have great deal of character and fixity of purpose this morning. After noon put into effect all of the various specific items, details agreed upon. P.M. be romantic.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Plunge into all those details at home, office, with car, correspondence, appagal, diet, furnishings, appliances, etc., awaiting your attention. Then after noon you can meet with partners and decide how joint affairs are to progress.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—A.M. unusually good for utilizing every spare moment to get yourself in pink of condition. Then p.m. your time for the labor and work you've agreed to do requiring inspiration and dexterity of execution. Plug away.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—This is your morning to be sure every single item is done exactly at your dwelling, or as your own claim desire. The p.m. is excellent for social and general prosperity and popularity. Be happy. Enjoy yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Toss off all errands, get in supplies, hold meetings, seek data during morning. Later you find you can get conditions as you really want them at your dwelling, which is a fine place to entertain, relax and enjoy yourself tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN FRIDAY...
Friday's child is one of those very attractive youngsters who will take a long while to learn anything in early life. However, you will find that by giving a practical and sensible education in adolescence, your offspring will become swift and fast in whatever he or she undertakes after a feeling of basic security has been obtained by the foregoing stated method. Fine chart for work connected with finances or whatever requires combining mental sturdiness with use of the limbs in rhythmic motion.

THIS SCREWBALL WORLD

Walls Can't Hold 'Sweet Nothings'

NEWCASTLE—ON-TYNE (Reuters)—A group of housewives living in municipal apartments here have petitioned the local council for thicker walls because they are embarrassed by sounds of gossip and love-making in next-door rooms.

Their five-page petition says: "We have lost our privacy because of this lack of sound-proofing."

The women say they cannot help hearing what the woman next door says about them, as well as every word of a family argument.

But worst of all, they say they can hear the "sweet nothings" whispered by neighboring newlyweds.

PARIS (Reuters)—What does a Frenchman want most in a wife? What does a French woman desire most in a husband?

The answer is "industriousness" according to 7,000 persons who entered a St. Valentine's competition.

Women placed fidelity sixth on the list of virtues, behind industry, honesty, frankness and loyalty.

Fidelity did not place on the men's list.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)

Frank Churnelski was driving his wife to hospital when she turned to him in dismay and said: "Honey, we're never going to make it."

Churnelski parked in front of a fire station and dashed inside for help.

In his excitement, he failed to set the emergency brake tight enough. The car slid into three poles.

Firemen, who found Mrs. Churnelski only slightly shaken by the accident helped her deliver a baby girl.

Mother and daughter are doing fine.

Speidel Named NATO Army Commander

PARIS (AP)—The Supreme NATO Command Wednesday officially announced the appointment of Lt. Gen. Hans Speidel of West Germany as commander of Allied land forces in Central Europe.

Supreme Allied commander, Gen. Lauris Norstad, said the appointment had been made "with the concurrence of the powers concerned" principally France and Britain, where a minor flurry of protest had arisen.

The first German to receive a senior appointment in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the 52-year-old Speidel served as chief of staff to German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in the days of the Normandy invasion.

Although linked with the famous bomb plot against Hitler in 1944, Speidel denied any participation. He spent the last months of the war in a Nazi jail.

The quiet, bespectacled officer will assume his duties about April 1. He will succeed French Gen. Marcel Carpentier, who resigned last year.

Speidel's headquarters will be at Fontainebleau, France.

Salmonellosis Now Compensable For Some Workers

Coverage under the Workmen's Compensation Act has been extended to cover salmonellosis, Labor Minister Lyle Weeks announced today.

In future this will be recognized as an industrial disease as was recently recommended by the Workmen's Compensation Board.

Salmonellosis is described as an acute inflammation of the intestinal tract caused by infection with a bacteria of the salmonellae genus.

Persons to whom coverage is extended are those employed in a hospital, nursing home, sanatorium, clinic or any branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses.

It applies also to those employed in a public health unit of the province, the University of British Columbia, any municipality or school board.

Employees of the B.C. Medical Research Institute and the department of bacteriology of UBC are also covered.

CPR Passenger Train Hits CNR Freight

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian Pacific Railway's Canadian and a Canadian National Railway freight were in collision Wednesday night at a point where the lines cross within the city limits of Portage la Prairie, Man., the CPR reported.

No one was injured and all cars of the CPR passenger train No. 1, which left Montreal Tuesday bound for Vancouver, remained on the track.

Six boxcars on the CNR train, which was hit "about in the middle," were derailed along with the diesel units hauling the Canadian.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)

A Michigan surgeon says that men who accidentally trim their feet while they try to trim their grass are becoming a major medical problem. Dr. Franklin V. Wade, Flint, Mich., surgeon and injury expert, said accidents resulting from the use of power mowers are adding to the mounting total of home accident cases.

Food Airlifted To Isolated Logging Town

OCEAN FALLS—More than 900 pounds of food was airlifted Wednesday to a small logging community of 52 persons here after the camp radioed most of the food supplies were gone.

Camp South Bentinck, about 30 miles south of Ocean Falls, was isolated when the small harbor froze over, cutting off steamship service, the only means of transportation. The camp, owned by Crown Zellerbach Ltd., radioed the Vancouver office the food was almost gone.

A small Beaver aircraft carrying meat, potatoes and canned goods, dropped the supplies Wednesday afternoon.

A company spokesman said unless the ice breaks up in the harbor, another air drop will be made in about a week.

Camp South Bentinck is closed for the winter, but 52 men and women—including 26 children—are staying on until the spring thaw.

DIES FROM FALL

HUTCHISON FROM OTTAWA

Diefenbaker Aligns Policy With Socreds

By BRUCE HUTCHISON
Editor The Victoria Daily Times

OTTAWA — After a baffling silence, John Diefenbaker has emerged with a Conservative party policy, probably set the pattern of the June election and provided a clear test of the Canadian government's courage.

In his Toronto speech Monday night, doubtless the most important of his career, Mr. Diefenbaker has begun a frontal attack on the government's anti-inflation policies.

But this obviously is only the beginning of his attack. It will broaden shortly, the government believes, into an attempt to pit the provinces against the present national taxation structure.

An historic election campaign is now under way. When all the trimmings are removed, Mr. Diefenbaker's Toronto speech is a direct repudiation of the government's so-called tight money policy. He says that interest rates are now too high. They are damaging small business by making it too difficult for the small businessman to borrow money. And this, Mr. Diefenbaker argues, worsens the inflationary danger by discouraging production.

His theory is virtually word for word the same theory expounded by Premier Bennett of British Columbia, and Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party. In monetary policy there is little real difference between Mr. Diefenbaker and the Social Crediters.

Whether that fact presages some cooperation between the Conservative and Social Credit parties in the election remains to be seen.

Tory, Socred Co-operation

Secondly, Mr. Diefenbaker comes out for those drastic tax reductions which the government regards as highly inflationary at a time when the total appetite for goods exceeds the supply.

Thirdly, the Toronto speech hints at the revival of an issue as old as Confederation—namely, the right of the provinces and the alleged attempt of the national government to mistreat them financially.

Mr. Diefenbaker did not pursue this subject far in Toronto but he said enough to convince the government that he intends to make it a major item in his election campaign, thus following in the footsteps of his predecessor, George Drew, and making a strong appeal to Quebec.

In Desperate Need of Support

The Diefenbaker speech must be related to its context in Toronto.

The Conservative leader went there desperately in need of support from the Ontario Premier, Leslie Frost, the most powerful Conservative in the traditionally Conservative province.

Mr. Frost has been denouncing the latest fiscal agreements between the federal and provincial governments as grossly unfair to the provinces, and particularly to Ontario. In the last week Mr. Frost's supporters in the provincial legislature have been conducting a chorus of protest against the new federal-provincial tax arrangements.

Now Mr. Diefenbaker demands a general revision of the nation's tax structure.

While his statement in this respect was brief and guarded, the government has no doubt that he will soon go on to demand a better financial deal for the provinces and municipalities.

The cost of any such deal, to be paid by the federal treasury, would be gigantic, if the provinces and municipalities were to receive "any worthwhile assistance."

At the same time Mr. Diefenbaker proposes to abolish the existing federal revenue surplus by an immediate tax reduction. He evidently believes that the government's surplus in the next year will be sufficient to cover more aid to the provinces and tax reductions at the same time.

Inflation to Bursting Point

In the Government's view any such policy would bring inflation to the bursting point. But much more serious, in its opinion, would be any easing in the tight money policy which is, in fact, only a policy of holding the total money supply at its present level, without any reduction.

The only way to reduce interest rates, as proposed by Mr. Diefenbaker and the Social Credit Party, is to expand the money supply since the existing interest rates are not fixed by the Government but only by the law of supply and demand in the money market.

Mr. Diefenbaker's whole policy, on which he proposes to fight the election, is thus regarded by the Government as nothing more nor less than a policy of inflation, very thinly disguised.

This policy, under present conditions, is considered utterly disastrous and unthinkable but whether the Government has the courage to resist it, or whether it will begin to ease its anti-inflation policy is not yet known. It will be known only when Hon. Walter Harris, minister of finance, introduces his spring budget.

But the Government knows perfectly well that if Mr. Diefenbaker's policy is inflationary it is also effective politics. It appeals to every municipality and business man in need of borrowed money, to all provinces eager for more federal aid, to all citizens who are restive under the tight-money policy and think that another little dose of inflation wouldn't do us any harm.

NO ASSURANCE OF TAX CUT

New Harris Formula Protects Car Dealers

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Harris today announced plans for a change in excise tax collections on automobiles aimed at avoiding a pre-budget slowdown in factory shipments of cars.

He told the Commons, however, that his announcement cannot be regarded as an indication of whether he plans to make any change in the level of the present 10-per-cent excise tax on cars.

Mr. Harris said his plan

TOBACCO MEN ASK TAX CUT ON CIGARETS

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario tobacco growers have asked Finance Minister Harris—a non-smoker—to reduce federal taxes by six cents per package of 20 cigarettes.

The last cut in federal taxes on cigarettes—4.4¢—came in the 1953 budget.

The federal tax burden on cigarettes now is 17.7¢ per pack of 20.

Soviet Secretly Arming Nasser?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia is reported to have resumed arms shipments to Egypt in recent weeks in what appears to be a move to rebuild President Nasser's battered armed forces.

U.S. officials who disclosed this today said, however, they could not be sure whether the shipments represent a new purchase or additional deliveries under a $250,000,000 contract disclosed in September, 1955. There have been rumors, but no confirmation, of a second deal.

The officials said they have what they regard as satisfactory evidence that Soviet deliveries include medium tanks, artillery, personnel carriers, and probably Russian jet fighters.

These weapons are understood to have been unloaded in crates from Communist ships and great secrecy, mainly at the Egyptian port of Alexandria. The new shipments all have arrived since the Middle East fighting ended three months ago.

Any new Soviet arms shipments to Egypt would be a violation of a United Nations assembly ceasefire resolution, adopted Nov. 1, which called on all countries to refrain from introducing new war materials into the Middle East area.

The first contract is known to have included more than 100 MIG jet fighters and about 50 IL-28 twin jet medium bombers.

EAST 'INTERESTED' IN B.C. PIG-IRON

Eastern Canada firms are showing keen interest in possibility of developing a pig iron industry in B.C.

A number of inquiries have been received since the government announced last month it was lifting a reserve on 250 square miles of iron-rich land on Graham Island, in the Queen Charlottes, Mines Minister Kenneth Klerman said today.

Interest is "quite substantial," he said, but declined to reveal the source of the inquiries.

The first company to establish a pig iron industry in B.C. from iron ore mined in the province will be eligible for a $3 a ton "bounty," with a limit of $200,000 a year for a maximum of 10 years.

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuters)—David Thiele, Australia's Olympic swimming gold medalist, broke the world 100-yard backstroke record to-night by one-tenth of a second. Thiele swam the distance in 55.6 seconds to beat the record of 55.7 second set by Yoshio Oyakawa of the United States, in 1954.

Conservation, Recreation Under Single Portfolio

Creation of a new cabinet portfolio of recreation and conservation, the promised $28 annual tax rebate to home-owners and new highway traffic regulations were forecast today in the Speech from the Throne opening the 25th B.C. legislature.

There were few surprises in the speech, which outlines legislation planned by the government at the coming session.

It was read after the House opening at 3 p.m. by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross. A copy was handed the press before delivery.

Besides the new cabinet post, the present Department of Trade and Industry will become the department of industrial development, trade and commerce.

An amendment to the Constitution Act will be required to create the new portfolios.

The Throne Speech referred to the forecast introduction of a new consolidated Municipal Act and added:

Municipal Aid

"Larger grants to municipalities will be made as a direct result of increased census figures, and you will be asked to consider legislation abolishing road and poll tax on non-property owners."

New measures are planned to encourage exploration and development of natural resources and the department of mines will be reorganized to this end. The government will explore "every possible means" of having a basic iron and steel smelting industry started in the province.

"In relation to our rapidly expanding oil and natural gas development... you will be asked to give consideration to certain steps that will assure the province not only of continued development in this field, but also of wise and practical conservation of this resource."

The government is "giving consideration" to enlarging the jurisdiction of the County Courts and increasing the size of the B.C. Court of Appeal, which now has five members. Legislation will be introduced dealing with the welfare of B.C.'s native Indians.

The departments of education and labor will combine to set

GALLERIES TENSE

Spat Draws Full House

Crowds packed the public galleries at the B.C. Legislature and thousands turned on their TV sets this afternoon in anticipation of "fireworks" at the state opening by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross.

Never before in B.C.'s history have so many people sought admission on opening day. The buildings have been flooded with inquiries all week and a line-up began to form outside the entrance to the public galleries before noon.

Public interest was stimulated by the announced determination of former legislative law clerk W. Berkeley Monteith and former sergeant-at-arms Edgar A. Jamieson to ignore their recent dismissal from office by the B.C. Cabinet until ratified by the whole house.

Mr. Monteith arrived at the buildings at 1.30 and retired to a dressing room to don his robes.

"I propose to carry out my duties," he told reporters. He was expected to take up his position as usual, ignoring the presence of his successor, city lawyer Ian M. Horne.

Unlike Mr. Monteith, Mr. Jamieson said he would not put up a public fight, but would resign until he was officially "fired" by the Legislature—and this must take place on opening day.

Mr. Monteith had repeatedly stated that "only physical restraint" would keep him away from the Legislature. Recently he added that he would not enter into any undignified scuffle but would accept restraint even if it were only a tap on the shoulder by an authorized official—presumably the new sergeant-at-arms, Denzil Ashby.

$13.6 Million Cut In Debt in '56-'57

British Columbia's net debt decreased by $13,600,000 to $136,116,783 during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1956, Premier Bennett reported today in public accounts tabled at the opening of the Legislature.

The accounts showed a net over-all improvement in B.C.'s financial position amounting to $11,968,936. Cash and investments totaled $75,415,402 compared with $62,457,588 at the end of the previous fiscal year.

Provincial expansion was reflected by an increase in assets from $486,000,000 at March 31, 1955, to $533,000,000 at March 31, 1956, and a relative increase in excess of assets over liabilities and reserves of $54,000,000. Revenue collections amounted to $227,253,373.

Debt charges were $5,142,935, and debt redemption $10,046,442—a total of $15,189,377.

General expenditures totaled $172,067,161.

Expenditures for capital purposes were shown as $34,694,363, but repayment from special B.C. funds and the federal government cut this figure to $26,374,549.

This left a net revenue surplus of $13,623,186.

City Firm Layoff Blamed On Housing Money Curb

B.C. Forest Products Ltd. today held the federal government's "tight money" policy in regard to housing loans partially responsible for forcing the layoff of a full shift of 150 men at the company's plywood mill here.

OTHER SHIFTS REMAIN

In announcing the suspension of the night shift, the company gave no indication of when and if work might be resumed. Both morning and afternoon shifts in the mill will be maintained.

If blamed the layoff on a combination of seasonal reduction in demand for plywood, and "the adverse effect of current credit restrictions on housing and construction programs in Canada" that have made it impossible to continue the present production.

SALES SLACKEN

The announcement came close on the heels of an announcement by Manning Timber Products Ltd. that it plans to close its Store Street mill Feb. 15 because of a depressed lumber market.

Alexander Hendry, manager

of Sooke Lake Lumber Ltd., said his company ceased operation on the graveyard shift of its plywood mill before Christmas for similar reasons.

"Exactly the same things affect us as B.C. Forest Products," he said.

Moore-Whittington Lumber Co. Ltd. officials reported credit restrictions had "considerably curbed" their lumber sales, but that production will continue at the present level until June at least.

A plea for the federal government to "do something" in connection with the "tight money" policy was voiced at a Victoria Labor Council meeting Wednesday night by Victor Midgley, international representative of the carpenters' brotherhood.

"Our local is really concerned," he told the council. "Many other industries are going to follow unless the federal government does something."

SITUATION "CRITICAL"

Al Playfair, president of the local office workers' union, termed the situation as "critical," and urged delegates to the council to wend protests against restricted credit to their members of parliament.

An indication of the industry's outlook was contained in a report to the directors of MacMillan and Bloedel Ltd. at their recent annual meeting by B. M. Hoffmeister, board chairman.

He said, in part: "Recent reports indicate that housing starts in Canada in 1957 will be 90,000 to 100,000, compared to 125,000 in 1956. This sharp reduction in starts, together with credit restrictions, indicates a poor prospect for the Canadian market to absorb the additional production (from the company's expanded facilities) this year."

FURTHER DROP SEEN

"Our trade with the United Kingdom now consists almost entirely of special sizes and grades that are purchased here only because they are not available from the smaller trees grown in the Baltic."

"Such conditions indicate still a further reduction of our sales to the United Kingdom."

"This leaves the United States as the only volume market available to us. While we have been able to increase our sales to this market, we are operating at a considerable disadvantage compared to competitive mills in the United States because of unfavorable exchange, which today is about four per cent, duty of $1 per thousand board feet, and a water freight penalty of approximately $7 per thousand, based on current charter prices.

"All sizes and types of mills are affected. However, it is particularly serious for the smaller non-integrated mills, a number of which have already been forced to close down indefinitely."

Rebellious Convicts Yield, Free Hostages

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (AP) — Rioting convicts knuckled under early today after ruling Utah State Prison in nearly 12 hours of uncontrolled revolt that was a mixture of violent destruction and almost tender concern for hostages.

Some prisoners went on a wild alcohol- and power binge; others watched TV and protected their captives.

They yielded to Governor George D. Clyde's insistence that he would not consider their demands until they turned loose their hostages and gave up their weapons.

The wild party ended at 4:55 a.m., PST. With the last 18 of the hostages came convict spokesmen who surrendered their arms.

43 POINTS

Governor Clyde said he now will consider the 43 "suggestions" of the prisoners.

One guard was stabbed in the stomach and one prisoner beaten by fellow-convicts during the melee. The prisoner, Alvin Strauss, ringleader in the 1951 riot, is reported in fair condition.

The riot started during dinner Wednesday, apparently in an argument between a convict and a guard and spread quickly.

The convicts grabbed 27 hostages, including 13 members of a

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ben Trevino, 25-year-old native of Brownsville, Tex., was elected by a landslide Wednesday night as president of the student council at the University of British Columbia.

Trevino, who entered UBC's law school in 1954 after a three-year stint in the United States Marines, gained student acclaim for leading a group of students to meet with the provincial cabinet in a bid for increased grants to the university.

BLAMED IN VANCOUVER DEATH

Control of New Pill Asked by Druggists

B.C. Pharmaceutical Association will ask government control over a pill sold openly in Vancouver drug stores which is blamed for the poison death of a North Vancouver woman.

Victoria representative to the B.C. druggists' association, Charles Burr, said today the pills are not sold in Victoria.

MISUSED

Pharmacist at Royal Jubilee Hospital, Mr. Burr said the pills, known as "Shof's Pills" were made for a Vancouver druggist. They were intended for relief of menstrual pains but were misused by some people as an agent to bring on abortion.

Fireman Committed In Forged Will Case

VANCOUVER (CP)—Gilbert Campbell was committed Wednesday for Supreme Court trial on three charges of forgery arising from the Thompson will case.

A fourth charge of conspiracy laid against the 51-year-old Vancouver fireman was dismissed by Magistrate Oscar Orr.

The magistrate said there was sufficient evidence to warrant commitment on the charge of forging a $936,000 will.

But he said he could find no evidence to sustain the charge Campbell conspired to defraud the two heirs of James Thompson, former owner of a Vancouver hotel.

Campbell reserved his defence. Bail was continued at $20,000.

Licence Plate Snafu Can't Be Corrected

British Columbia's blue and white number plates cannot be changed even though Alberta plates have the same color scheme, a spokesman for the B.C. motor vehicles branch said today.

"The same difficulty applies in Alberta," he said. "Alberta plates are already being delivered to car owners. They cannot be changed."

He added, however, that while the colors are the same the general structure of the plate is different. Alberta plates have two letters in front of the number and the date 1957 appears at the top.

"I do not think they should lead to confusion," the spokesman said.

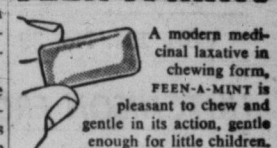

"This has never happened before," the spokesman said.

U.K. Cuts Bank Rate LONDON (Reuters)—Britain today lowered her bank discount rate—key to the amount of interest charged on borrowed money—to 5 per cent from 5½ per cent.

There was no amplification of the promise to bring in new highway traffic regulations, but it is assumed they will be aimed at curbing the province's mounting death toll in auto crashes.

Tribute was paid in the Throne Speech to Ernest Winch, who died last month. The veteran CCF member had represented Burnaby riding in the Legislature since 1933.

"Mr. Winch will not only be mourned by his constituents, but by all those who knew his unselfish and untiring devotion to public affairs," the speech said.

Extend the present remission of the gasoline tax for ex-servicemen amputees to all amputees.

Provide compensation for blind persons who are injured at work.

The Cosy Little Cloud

I'd not mind the thought of eventual death so much if I knew I'd be given a cosy little cloud where I could snuggle down—all comfy-like—and watch what was happening in the world below.

Because I'm sure there'll be so many things that I'll want to see the outcome of. I'll want to see what happens to the role of women in society. For the emancipation of women is still so new that we have hardly seen the start of it.

Will all the women of the future go out to work like men? Up to now, they've been handicapped by the production and care of children. But if Rostand's theories are correct, and if the state undertakes the care of children almost from the time of birth, then what's to keep women in the home? Will it be healthy for society if women as a whole forsake their traditional role? Will it make for human happiness?

I'll want to see what happens to the automobile. How long can we continue to endure the increasing carnage on the roads? What will be the solution?

I'll want to see what happens to our burial customs. Will cemeteries become old-fashioned? Will the great populations of the future look back with horror to the barbaric days when we used precious arable land for the burial of the dead? Because social mores do change, and I can see no reason why this one shouldn't change in time.

I'll want to see whether all these predictions about enormous populations actually come true. If wars are eliminated, if diseases and famines are checked, if infant mortality is reduced to almost nil, if the normal life span is lengthened, surely populations are bound to increase?

I'll want to see whether the Malthusian theory is correct. It seems to be popping up all over the place these days although for years people laughed at Malthus for saying that the world's population would eventually outstrip the world's food supply.

I'll want to see whether mankind solves this problem by increasing the food supply in ways that we've not yet dreamed of.

Or will the problem be solved by better treatment of the land? Will mankind come to realize that the production of food is the most important task of all? Will mankind, for the sake of survival, have to do some serious thinking about necessities and luxuries?

Will mankind have to reconsider the question of a high birthrate, and break down opposition to discussions of birth control?

After all, a high birthrate has always been encouraged because it was considered good for the strength of a nation and ensured a plentiful supply of manpower in time of war.

But if physical warfare is replaced by the more civilized method of discussions at the international conference table, then surely a high birthrate isn't so important any more? These are just a few of the questions that I'd like to know the answers to.

There's little chance that I shall find them in my lifetime.

So, by golly, I'd better start house-hunting for that cosy little cloud!

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Maxine Gluck and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

MANY parents have written me asking what they can do to make a boy grow when it looks as if he is going to stay very short. As I said a while ago, a commercial preparation of the growth hormone, which was isolated a good many years ago by Professor Herbert Evans from the pituitaries of animals, will make a small dachshund grow into a huge hound. But recently, as I chatted about this with my old friend, Dr. Evans, he told me that, because of chemical differences in the growth hormones obtained from cattle, dogs, and men, a commercial product, made from a human pituitary, has not worked entirely satisfactorily with children. The results obtained have been erratic.

Now, Dr. C. H. Li, director of the University of California Hormone Research Laboratory, reports that the growth hormone made from monkeys appears to be fairly similar to that of man. Both are very different from the growth hormone obtained from cattle. Dr. Li said that the monkey hormone is now being tested on boys to see if it will make them grow. Unfortunately, if the monkey hormone proves to be effective for children, it will be very hard to get enough of it for commercial use.

An important point is that, after the age of 16 or so, growth in the long bones is finished, and hence one can then no longer hope to get good results from the use of any drug.

HOSPITAL HELPS AT HOME

Montefiore Hospital in New York City has just admitted to its home-care service patient number 1,000. He is a 63-year-old man with a cancer of the stomach which has grown into his liver. He has been anemic and almost confined to his bed. To care for such a man in a hospital could cost from $15 to $20 a day. Also, the man would tie up a bed, much needed for persons with acute troubles. Accordingly, patient No. 1,000 is being given nursing service in his home, and his wife is being taught how to take care of him. Once or twice a week a doctor will go out from the hospital to visit the man. The doctor can go often if he is needed. The cost of such service runs between $3 and $4 a day.

Observers are now coming from many countries to observe the Montefiore experiment which has worked so well. Already one hospital in Texas has a home-care service for women who have just had a baby. They go home 24 hours after delivery.

According to Dr. Rossman, a hospital should be devoted primarily to surgery and to illnesses that require intensive medical supervision, difficult diagnostic work-ups and other such services. The home-care program is for patients who require some nursing care, with only an occasional visit from a physician. This is particularly the case with patients who have cancer that has scattered throughout the body. Usually the patient is much happier if left at home, surrounded by his loved ones. An occasional visit from the nurse and the physician or a physiotherapist or some special therapist is often all that is needed.

FEWER IRON LUNGS

Dr. W. Kenneth Lane, of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, recently reported in Copenhagen that most polio patients who were in an iron lung can now be gotten out of it. Of 35 persons who had been in a respirator for long periods of time, 18 now are weaned from this aid. Thirty-four of them are able to be at home. Only one of them still must stay in the iron lung all of the time. Twenty-nine are able to feed themselves; six are back at work; and another five expect to go back to work eventually. Ten of the women are mothers and are taking care of their homes. Eight of them need some hired help. Of the five children of school age, three are back in school, and another is expected to go back soon.

TOO LATE FOR THE DOCTOR

Dr. Charles Cameron, former medical and scientific director of the American Cancer Society, complained recently about what we physicians all know, and this is that many persons with cancer fail to go to a physician for months after their symptoms appear. For instance, Dr. Cameron said that the average woman with cancer of the neck of her womb does not go to her doctor until the disease is far advanced. A man with cancer of the voice box, which soon causes him to get hoarse, will wait for—on an average—4½ months before he goes to a doctor. The average patient with cancer of the stomach waits 14 months, and the average woman with cancer of the breast waits several months, until her tumor is the size of a ping-pong ball.

A WINTER CLASSIC

Baby Teeth Vitally Important

This week is being observed across Canada as Dental Health Week. In co-operation with the Victoria and District Dental Society the Times today presents the fifth in a series of six articles designed to help parents guard against dental disease in their children.

The youngster's first teeth are just as important as his permanent teeth.

The care given the so-called baby teeth can often mean the difference between life - long dental health and a need for artificial dentures in young adulthood.

The tooth buds for the child's first teeth begin to form about the sixth week of prenatal life. Calcification begins about the 16th week, and by birth a large part of the crowns of the teeth is already formed.

The first teeth start to appear when the infant is about seven and one-half months old, and they continue to come in until the child is about two.

When he is about six years old, the baby teeth begin to be shed normally and the process goes on until he is about 12.

The early loss of these first teeth, through decay or any other reason, can have serious effects because it can result in crowding and severe disarrangement of the second teeth.

One of the chief functions of the first teeth is to maintain space for the eruption of the permanent teeth into the right place. When a baby tooth is lost too soon, the adjacent teeth tend to shift and fill the space, causing the new teeth to come in badly out of position.

There are other reasons why sound and healthy first teeth are important. They are necessary for proper mastication of food. They help to make a child speak clearly. And they give graceful form and symmetry to the face.

The first permanent teeth to appear are the so-called six-year

JOY INTERMINGLES WITH TRAGEDY

Brown-Eyed Boy Talks Again, But Girl Still Lies Unconscious

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bruce Harrington, 13-year-old traffic victim, talked Wednesday for the first time since Dec. 16. He had been in a coma 51 days.

His big brown eyes followed every movement of photographers who went to the Health Centre for Children after it was reported he might be breaking out of his unconsciousness.

He smiled briefly and lifted his left hand to his chest. His lips moved frequently.

OLD TERM

The name terrier originally was used only for dogs which pursued rabbits and other game into their burrows.

Then a nurse brought a dump-truck and asked him if he would like to keep it to play with. In a thin but clear voice Bruce replied: "Keep it."

His lips moved soundlessly for a few seconds, then he formed faint but audible words that apparently reflected his joy at being able to speak again: "Oh boy . . . oh boy."

Bruce was struck by a car while riding his bicycle Dec. 16. The semi-private room where he is recovering was still a room of tragedy, however. On the other side of the curtain is Pat Kowalski, 15, unconscious 143 days since she was hit by a car last Sept. 16.

"Peach Snowcaps" are more flavourful

—made with Monarch Chocolate Cake Mix

Monarch is the Chocolate Cake Mix with the true Dutch chocolate flavour, deep, dark and delicious. In each package is plenty of that pure, smooth chocolate specially imported from Holland. That's why your Monarch Mix makes Canada's finest chocolate cake.

Daily tests show Monarch Mixes are Canada's Finest.

Monarch Test Kitchens are continuously testing Monarch Mixes for you against all others. Not one Monarch Mix is passed till we're sure it is the finest mix you can buy, positively Canada's Finest.

PEACH SNOWCAPS

Bake a Monarch Chocolate Cake according to the easy package directions, using an 8" square cake pan. When cool, cut into 9 squares. Top each with a cherry. Place a drained peach half, cut side down, over cherry. Cover completely with meringue. Place Snowcaps on cookie sheet 4" below oven broiler for 2-3 minutes or until meringue is lightly browned. Chill before serving.

Meringue: Beat 3 egg whites (room temperature) to soft peak stage. Gradually add ½ cup granulated sugar, 1¼ teaspoons cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon vanilla. Continue to beat until mixture forms stiff, but not dry, peaks.

CPR FREIGHTER AGROUND FOR HOUR AT UCLUELET

The CPR's west coast freighter, Mv Princess of Alberni ran aground in Ucluelet harbor at 5 a.m. today, but managed to work herself off in about an hour.

She moved into dockside and at press time was awaiting a three-man salvage survey crew from Island Tug & Barge.

Headed by salvage superintendent Jack McLaughlin and including diver Jack Daly, the team will conduct underwater survey for possible damage before the ship attempts to carry on to other west coast ports.

Island Tug was also called in when a small Vancouver beach-combing vessel, the Fancy Free, caught fire in Halkett Bay, Gambler Island, in the Howe Sound area this morning.

Two men aboard were rescued by another small vessel, Island Tug dispatched the tug Island Commander to the scene, but the burning vessel was so far gone she sank when the tug extinguished the flames with her fire-fighting equipment.

MONTE ROBERTS

The Canadian Press reports from Winnipeg that Dr. Morgan Wright of the University of Manitoba psychology department says winter weather saps a person's strength and induces a depressive feeling known as the "winter blues."

To the best of my knowledge Winnipeg is a good place to report about winter from. In fact, it has been said Winnipeg has even more winter than Victoria, although how this could be, I cannot fathom.

Victoria has quite enough winter for one and all, even though it is reputed to be the place spring comes first to but when?

It is now time to get back to Dr. Morgan Wright's views on the winter blues.

"That lazy feeling," he states, "is nothing but a depletion of physical resources. The cold has sapped our strength. We wear 10 extra pounds of clothing. Walking through wind and snow takes extra effort. We move continually from extremes of heat and cold."

So far, Dr. Wright, I am right with you, and you are making me very happy.

Up until now, I thought the reason for my lazy feeling was that I was lazy.

Now I know the truth, and I am a better man for it. (Turn off the alarm clock, mother, I am stricken with the winter blues.)

But, as the good doctor continues his thesis, he tends to lose me.

He suggests many people try to escape the winter blues by going to parties.

"Because their spirits are low they drink and smoke more than usual. This only makes them weaker. It's a vicious circle."

That's where I don't dig the doctor. If that lazy feeling is due to winter, what are people doing, going to parties in winter?

I have never seen a party yet which was a fit place for a man with the true attributes of laziness.

Unless it were an opium party, and I hear tell such parties are highly illegal.

Then Dr. Wright gets around to handing out some advice, and once again I am right with him.

Advise: "Smoke less and drink less. When you get home at night take it easy. Don't worry if you haven't any energy."

At current prices for drinks and smokes (including the sales tax) a man has no choice but to drink less and smoke less.

And as for taking it easy when I get home nights, and not worrying about lack of energy, this just naturally comes natural to me.

I'm afraid, though, the doctor and I part company once again with his closing remark:

"You'll be a new and better man when the world wakes up in the spring."

Let the world wake up in the spring, doctor. This boy has already laid his plans for his annual attack of spring fever, which is an even better reason for laziness than the winter blues.

And no psychologist is going to talk me out of it.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

A series of lectures on fundamentals of metallurgy, sponsored by the Vancouver Island chapter of the American Society for Metals, starts here Wednesday, Feb. 13, at 8 p.m. in Central Junior High School.

Speaker will be R. D. Barer, P. Eng. He will lecture at the same time Feb. 20, 27, March 6, and March 13.

There will be a charge for lecture attendances.

City firemen answered a call to B.C. Forest Products sawdust plant at 4:50 p.m. Wednesday when a flash fire threatened the premises. Fire was extinguished without damage.

Saanich may be asked to pay a larger share of maintenance of city-owned parks in that municipality. Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee now is financed by the two municipal councils with Saanich paying one-third.

Victoria parks administrator W. H. Warren has proposed sharing should now be based on population, which would mean Saanich would pay over 40 per cent. Council parks committee will study the matter.

Chief of Naval Staff's commendation for bravery was presented Wednesday to AB Rich and Metcalfe, 21, cook aboard HMCS Cordova.

Metcalfe saved the life of a shipmate, William Skrypetz, when he fell from a jetty at Port Hardy last July.

Ladies' Auxiliary to the Mt. Tolmie Cubs and Scouts will meet in Shelbourne St. Scout Hall tonight at 8:30.

Some 25 wardens of the Greater Victoria area will attend the first of three lectures on evacuation planning at Civil Defence headquarters Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Lectures will be given by chief warden Barrie Gault and chief instructor Bob Abbott.

All main highways on Vancouver Island were reported today by the highways department as "fair," and sanded where necessary.

Victoria police and firemen's unions have both spurned a 5 per cent wage increase offered by council. Mayor Percy Scourrah said today.

Both unions have requested wage increases of 15 per cent. The mayor said both are asking a new offer from the city.

First class firemen and policemen receive $332.94 a month at present.

Health Minister Eric Martin today announced a grant of $3,309 to the Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria, to help defray cost of renovation and repairs.

The Royal Jubilee is one of 13 B.C. hospitals receiving grants totalling $8,751, forming one-third of the cost involved.

Elsewhere on Vancouver Island, the Rest Haven Hospital at Sidney gets $1,348; King's Daughters, Duncan, $872; Cumberland General, $504.

Recreational activities arranged for members of the Victoria Aged Pensioners' Association No. 3 for February begin Friday with bowling at Strathcona Alleys at 9:30 a.m.

Other activities include bowling at Gibson's Bowldrome Monday, Feb. 11, at 9:30 a.m., attendance at the hockey game at Memorial Arena Monday, Feb. 18, at 8 p.m., and attendance at the Royal Theatre Thursday, Feb. 21, at 1 p.m.

City police picked up a hit-run suspect Wednesday night, a few minutes after two cars were smashed near Hillside and Prior, by following a trail of radiator water from the scene to the suspect's car.

Cars owned by Annie M. McCarter, 2002 Lorne, and Millicent L. Rose, 315 Wilson, were heavily damaged. Const. Douglas Grant followed the water trail and alerted Saanich police, whose Const. Frank Briers located the suspected car with a damaged radiator.

Three Sidney youngsters who appeared in juvenile court Wednesday were each fined $10 and costs for driving without licences. One was placed on probation for three months as a condition of sentence.

CREWS WORK ALL NIGHT CLEARING E & N MALAHAT SLIDE

A slide of rock and snow on the Malahat, that blocked the E & N Railway at 1 p.m. Wednesday, was cleared at 6:30 a.m. today, according to D. C. Hartley, superintendent.

He said southbound passengers on the Dayliner rail car were returned to Duncan, where a bus brought them to Victoria. Today's passengers were taken to Duncan by bus so the Dayliner could leave that station on schedule.

The slide occurred immediately south of the railway tunnel on the Malahat. Crews worked all night to clear the rails, Mr. Hartley said.

Alderman to Ask 'Animals Only' Zoo

If Victoria council agrees to relocation here of Paul Hertel's Port Alberni zoo, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow will recommend it be restricted to a showplace for animals only.

After touring "Featherland," the bird showplace of Cecil Hyndman at 1848 Burnside today, the alderman said he felt the city tourist industry would benefit by maintaining the exclusive nature of the two attractions.

He said both should receive equal publicity by the city.

The alderman toured Featherland after hearing complaints at his action in viewing the Port Alberni zoo and recommending the city assist in bringing it to Victoria. Mr. Hertel's zoo contains lions, cougars, and native B.C. animals as well as many foreign birds.

Some sources felt bringing the entire zoo here would be detrimental to the locally-sponsored "Featherland."

Mayor Percy Scourrah indicated today he would oppose the alderman's suggestion.

"Nobody gets an exclusive in a free enterprise country," he stated.

Mr. Hertel has offered his zoo as an attraction for the city-owned Thetis Lake Park.

Ald. Edgelow will recommend to council Friday that the city finance the move and establishment of the Hertel zoo "as a loan to be repaid."

He felt the financing could be done through the proposed sale of timber which is to be selectively logged in back areas of the park this year.

The logging was authorized by council last year and has been awaiting a better log market.

FRIDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Lions: Empress Hotel, noon luncheon. S/L R. D. Higgins will speak on "Your Tax Dollar and the Reserve Forces."

Canadian Diabetic Association, Victoria and district branch: St. Joseph's Hospital, nurses' auditorium, 7:45 p.m.

Vancouver Island Rabbit Breeders: Rosedale Hall, 8 p.m.

English-Speaking Union: Victoria College, room 210, 8 p.m. Brian Roberts will speak on "Africa, Land of Controversy."

BUT WIFE CAN DO WHAT SHE LIKES—HE SAYS

55 Years Married, He's Allowed 24 Ashtrays

By DINAH KERR

Josiah Wilkinson says, "I let my wife do whatever she likes."

Fanny Wilkinson says, "We

both do as we like, dear. We agree on everything."

And that is how the Wilkinsons account for 55 years of married happiness they'll celebrate Friday.

This "live and let live" philosophy extends to Mr. Wilkinson's 24 ash trays scattered through their living room and kitchen at 96 Cadillac.

"He couldn't live without his pipe," says his wife, 79. (She still smokes cigarettes "now and again.")

"This is his home and he can do as he wants. I've had him for 55 years and I would not have anyone else."

While Mrs. Wilkinson sat placidly in her chair by the fireplace, Mr. Wilkinson, 81, skipped about like Peter Pan and demanded that the truth be told.

"He's still a big tease," said Fanny Wilkinson. "You have no idea. He'll get out of bed and dance around like he was a two-year-old."

Mrs. Wilkinson is recuperating from a seven-month stint in hospital when her weight dropped from 153 lbs. to 96 lbs.

A tiny woman, her dresses are six inches too big around the waist. Even her doctor teases her about it. "He says he's going to get me down to my girlish figure," Mrs. Wilkinson said.

Married in London, Eng., the Wilkinsons emigrated to Calgary in 1911. When Mr. Wilkinson retired from the Imperial Tobacco Co. in 1941, they moved to Victoria.

Josiah and Fanny Wilkinson have one word of advice for young married couples: "Never let the sun go down on your wrath. You'll have a good night's rest that way."

Bridge Traffic Plans Studied

Shipyard Work Hours May Be Staggered

By PETE LOUDON

A two-pronged plan, aimed at avoiding crippling traffic jams on Johnson Street Bridge when Point Ellice Bridge is demolished in April, is under study at city hall.

Experts fear the worst tie-up in Victoria's history could result if plans aren't made to alleviate congestion during the three-month re-construction period.

Mayor Percy Scourrah and city engineer James Garnett have two plans for solving the problem.

1. Ask Yarrows Ltd. and HMC Dockyard to stagger hours of work so workers would cross Johnson Street bridge an hour apart.

2. Ask Capt. Ronald Newell, harbor master, to ensure that the bridge will not be opened at rush hours during the Point Ellice bridge construction period. (The harbor master thinks an arrangement can be made.)

It is estimated about 1,600 cars will try crossing the Johnson Street bridge in peak rush hour periods, twice a day.

1,000 AN HOUR
Bridge capacity is strained now with 1,000-an-hour flow to and from Esquimalt industrial areas.

At present, over 600 cars travel westbound over Point Ellice bridge between 7 and 8 a.m. daily and eastbound between 4 and 5 p.m.

4-MILE DETOUR
Only other route across the Gorge this side of Craigflower is via the Tillicum bridge, which is also carrying near-capacity traffic at rush times and is a four-mile detour for traffic normally using the other bridges.

The possibility that 1,600 cars will try to cross Johnson Street bridge in a one-hour period makes traffic experts shudder.

The slowdown forced on the home-bound traffic by downtown traffic lights would mean a solid stream of cars between downtown and Esquimalt centre.

Traffic attempting to enter Esquimalt Road or Johnson Street would be certain to be stalled for long periods.

The necessity to open the Johnson Street bridge during morning rush hours has meant as many as 400 workers have been late for their jobs and many have had their jobs docked.

The city has no control over seaway traffic.

Earlier this week the Canadian National Railway confirmed it would pay $20,000 to the same project.

Both contributions were negotiated by Mayor Scourrah during a visit to Ottawa last fall, by virtue of a recent amendment to the Railways Act which places some responsibility for bridge over railways with the DOT and Canadian railways.

Contracts for the bridge construction total $629,644.

The two grants will reduce the cost to the city to just over $500,000.

If the B.C. grant materializes, the bridge will cost in the vicinity of $400,000—almost $150,000 less than was anticipated at the time the $350,000 bridge money by-law was passed last April.

Fatal Accident Driver Jailed

30-Day Term Given in City Court For Failure to Remain at Scene

Frederick Parkinson, 51, 906 Admirals, was sentenced to 30 days in jail when he appeared in city court today convicted of failing to remain at the scene of a

He was arrested Dec. 22 and has been in custody since.

Pedestrian Clement S. Gibbs, 72, 408 Rayner, died after being struck by Parkinson's truck at Raynor and Craigflower. Accused was arrested after investigation by city and RCMP officers.

Magistrate H. C. Hall said in passing sentence:

"The only charge is that you failed to remain. The usual practice in B.C. in usual circumstances is to impose a fine . . . In this case, however, it must have been apparent to you you struck this man a heavy blow and apparent his injury was serious."

"You must have realized from the force of the blow there was little you could do. I still regard the fact that he was struck a heavy blow."

"I'm going to sentence you to one month and recommend a substantial suspension of licence."

PACIFIC ROLLED

Ships Home From South

Three tiny but vitally important units of the Royal Canadian Navy returned to Esquimalt at 10 a.m. today after a month-long exercise in California waters.

The little ships carry the proud name "Second Canadian Minesweeping Squadron," and during the cruise they upheld the RCN's reputation for efficiency as they carried out joint exercises with units of the United States Navy.

They are HMC Ships Comox, James Bay, and Fortune. They are classed as coastal minesweepers, with the official designation MCB, an over-all length of 152 feet, breadth of 28 feet, and drawing just over eight feet.

Their shallow draft is essential to enable them to sweep in close to shore, clearing harbor approaches of mines, but it doesn't help make them comfortable ships on an ocean voyage.

During the last cruise, the usual winter-dirty weather was encountered. But either officers and men of all three ships are good sailors, or the ships ride better than they would appear to, because no one would admit to seasickness.

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

Fine Food and Mellow Music

(Fourth in a Series)

A friend who is taking off for a Honolulu vacation next week stopped me yesterday and asked: "Where should I eat? And how much should I pay?"

The answer, of course, is that you can buy anything from a hamburger to a Chateaubriand (for two) at $12.

Generally speaking, food prices are a shade lower than Montreal, New York, New Orleans or San Francisco. The top restaurants seem to have arrived at an understanding: $3.50 for a roast beef dinner, $5 for steak.

Surprisingly enough, one of the best restaurants in town is operated by the Salvation Army, but don't look for it under that name in the telephone book. It's called the Waiala Tea Room. It's up in the hills behind the city but worth every cent of the $2 it will cost you to get there by taxi.

Set (as many Honolulu places are) amid a rich jungle of palms, ferns, hibiscus and tinkling fountains, the lava-stoned bungalow has a wide lanai (porch) and inner court just bulging with wholesome goodies. You start with a punch—non-alcoholic, of course—and proceed to make your own salad at a buffet.

There follows an elegant roast chicken, served by one of the aloof-eyed beauties from the Girls' Home, who learn domestic science as a project with the Sally Ann.

"The end," as the saddle-shoe set is saying, is a dessert table whose chiffon pies, all home-baked, look like a miniature Coast Range, and layer cakes whose calorie count must be astronomical. Take all you want: $2. The literati like to stroll out behind to visit a grass hut where Robert Louis Stevenson is alleged to have grappled with the muse.

At Trader Vic's, the specialist de la mission is a "scorpion," served in a bowl with a floating orchid, and so-called because four persons can drink from it simultaneously, from colorful nylon straws. Here you can also buy a sumptuous shrimp or prawn dish, on which they'll sprinkle condiments as varied as chopped bacon and peanuts.

At a place called The Willows, you sit beneath Polynesian thatched roofs and watch the groupers cavort in a lagoon at the side of your table. The Gourmet, on the main street of Waikiki, has Parisian decor and good food. Woody's, in the downtown Hawaiian Life Insurance building, is a superior cafeteria with an interesting chandelier made out of tea-kettles and antiques scattered liberally about.

The most-talked-about place, of course, is Henry Kaiser's Hawaiian Village, with palm trees sprouting up through the floor and a beach so attractive it appears almost artificial—which it is.

Mr. Kaiser, as usual, has done things boldly, and in a hurry. A night shift is busily riveting steel for a new addition and a 1,800-seat auditorium will shortly offer symphony.

At the Village, you can hear Alfred Apaka ("The Bing Crosby of the Islands") and wish he would sing more of his native music. In the Shell Room, which adjoins, you can also hear some startling modern music led by an urbane bass player named Joe Mullian, and consisting of Hammond organ, electric guitar and bongos.

Mr. Mullian plays off-beat stuff like "The March of the Siamese Children" from "The King and I" and "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue." Quite the most exciting new music we'd heard in a decade.

Mr. Mullian plays off-beat stuff like "The March of the Siamese Children" from "The King and I" and "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue." Quite the most exciting new music we'd heard in a decade.

At the Village, you can hear Alfred Apaka ("The Bing Crosby of the Islands") and wish he would sing more of his native music. In the Shell Room, which adjoins, you can also hear some startling modern music led by an urbane bass player named Joe Mullian, and consisting of Hammond organ, electric guitar and bongos.

Doll's Wardrobe Adaptable To Busy Social Life, Too

By PENNY SAVER

Remember Suzie? She's the pert little walking doll that has the charming open-and-shut eyes, long 'saran pigtail' and exciting doll wardrobe. She's been at the dressmakers again, and has come home with a whole raft of new clothes. The latest includes a pink snugly snow suit, $1.79 and a hat, coat and purse set, 98 cents. The coat is a small black and white check and the hat, of red felt accented with side-flowers. There's a farm outfit, blue denim and plaid shirt selling at $1.29. Frilly and frivolous is the bridesmaid dress of frothy net. There's a headdress and tiny bouquet, all for $1.39. She's getting to be one of the best-dressed dolls in the city.

Larger sized sweaters are rather hard to find in town, so those of you who take up to a size 48 in sweater will be happy to know of soft wool cardigans being sold by a local store. There is rose, green, blue, grey, navy and black from which to choose. The price is right at $7.95.

Blouses are the last word in casual and dressy fashions this season. For wear with your favorite capri pants or a smart skirt, here are comfortable, soft blouses in grey or brown. Three-quarter sleeves, a button-down front and collar and the softness of the blousing caused by the drawstring at waist or hips are all selling points of these attractive blouses. These, in a warm, easily laundered material are $4.95.

Definitely casual and wonderful with slacks and a car coat are these wool jersey blouses fashioned with warm, top-fashion hoods. The waistlines are nipped in with the popular drawstring. These come in black, light brown and blue, and are priced at $3.88.

From Italy are the pottery plates that would please any hostess. They're designed and hand-made especially for a Canadian firm. Round, they are perfect watermelon slices. When you're entertaining a small group, these serve as luncheon plates or serving plates, and either way are compliment-getters. You'll love them just as I did. They're yours for $1.75 each. (A few hints dropped to the man-in-the-house might result in a watermelon Valentine gift.)

WHEN MAY BRIDE AND GROOM LEAVE RECEPTION?

When I am married in the spring, we plan to have a family breakfast at noon following the ceremony. Then we want a reception later, say from 4 to 8 p.m. so that we will have time to have photographs taken. We want to leave the reception at 8 p.m. Inasmuch as we don't expect people to leave promptly at that hour, would it be permissible for us to leave at that time without being rude? Is a reception from 4 to 8 all right, or is it socially incorrect?

Louise Davis answers:

I suggest that you have your reception hours "from four until seven." Should you stipulate "from four until eight," the guests might think that you will be serving dinner. The earlier hour would indicate just light refreshments. It is quite correct and proper that a bride and bridegroom leave early if they wish to. Most of them do while the guests are still present. Stay long enough to greet all the guests, to cut the cake and to partake of refreshments if you wish. You are not obligated to remain. You and the young man are not host and hostess. You are in an entirely different category as very special guests of honor. The world is yours for the day, and you need not feel apologetic by leaving at your own convenience.

Film Night—Members of the Royal Bride Chapter, IODE, with members of the Oak Leaf Chapter enjoyed a film night and social at headquarters recently. Austin Goward of the B.C. Electric public relations department showed three films: "Dorothy's Dream House," "Hawaiian Holiday" and "Stratford Festival." He was thanked by Mrs. P. Littlewood, Royal Bride Chapter regent, Mrs. R. Hadfield, announced that a hamper had been delivered to a needy German family, newcomers to Canada, also nine ditty bags for immigrants to Canada had been turned in and a further $25 voted to purchase articles for additional bags. Mrs. W. P. McCall and Mrs. F. Petrie are in charge of dinner arrangements for the annual meeting on Feb. 14, and it was announced the next regular meeting will be held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Littlewood, 1250 Judge Place.

Leadership

It was decided to hold a one-day school for leadership at a recent meeting of Lake Hill Women's Institute. The school will be at Lake Hill Women's Institute Hall. Members voted to give support to the Canadian Association of Consumers regarding the abolishment of trading stamps. Mrs. J. Sutherland presided. Adelaide Hoodless Day will be observed February 18. Tea was served by Mrs. E. Glover and Mrs. M. K. Millen.

Present Program—Mrs. Richard Bagley and Miss Betty Harrington presented a program, "The Written Word" at a meeting of Xi Nu Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, held at the home of Miss Florence Smith, with president, Miss Doreen Walker in the chair. Following the meeting, a shower was given for Mrs. Bagley, the former Miss Bea Compton. Gifts were arranged in a miniature ship, to compliment the groom, who is in the Navy. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

WHY GROW OLD?

Exercise for Abdomen, Shoulders Beneficial to All

Already my fall is beginning to indicate that many of you on the marathon are showing marked improvement in your health, beauty and attitudes toward life. This gives me such a thrill! All I can say is keep up the good work.

Today I would like to offer a few exercises which will benefit all women whether on the marathon or not. These exercises will be beneficial for the whole family, too.

I would never say that doing one exercise is just as good as another when you wish to reduce your hips or your abdomen or waist, because I know it "ain't" so. However, there are some exercises which are universally important for men, women and children because they counteract the natural tendency we have to give in to gravity and poor posture.

For instance, strong abdominal muscles are important to all of us, both from the standpoint of health and good looks. Also, the tendency is to slump through the shoulders, especially at teen age and at middle age.

So today I would like to give you an exercise for the abdomen and one for the shoulders. And remember, it is more fun to do exercises with others, than to do them alone.

To strengthen the abdominal muscles: Lie on the floor on your back. Your arms rest on the floor overhead. Bend both knees up close to the abdomen. Grasp the knees with the hands and pull back. Slowly return arms to overhead position as you stretch your legs toward the ceiling and lower them to the floor. Continue. This should be done slowly and with control.

For the shoulders: Stand tall with your arms at your sides. Raise your arms forward, shoulder height and shoulder width apart, palms facing. Briskly, swing your arms backward and turn the palms toward the back of the room. In a relaxed manner bring your arms forward again to the shoulder height, shoulder width apart position. Continue. The return to the starting position should be relaxed but the swing-back should be vigorous.

It still is not too late to join the marathon. If you would like to lose 20 pounds in eight weeks or diminish any defects you may have, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the marathon booklet. Address

Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Annual meeting, Navy League Chapter, IODE, Eaton's private dining room, Friday at 12:30 noon.

THE WORLD'S MOST MODERN WASHER

1957 FILTER-FLO BY

GENERAL ELECTRIC

Only clean water can wash clothes clean. Filter-Flo by General Electric actually cleans the water as it cleans your clothes. Lint, sand, soap scum are constantly being filtered away while your clothes are being washed. Don't wash dirt into your clothes—wash dirt out with G-E's modern Filter-Flo Washer.

This great advance in automatic washers is yet another example of General Electric's constant efforts to bring you tomorrow's engineering today. Every day, extensive research is going on in the G-E laboratories; research that creates the best possible product at the lowest possible cost for you. That's why, when you buy any G-E Automatic Washer you know you're buying the finest — the most modern — the greatest value for your money.

THE WORLD'S MOST MODERN WASH-DRY TEAM

G-E FILTER-FLO WASHER Model No. WA-857P

G-E CLOTHES DRYER Model No. PDA-820

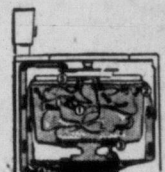

FILTER-FLO
Removes lint, sand and soap scum. Full tub circulates and filters at the rate of six gallons every minute. Before lint can settle on your clothes, before washed-out dirt can get back in, they're caught in the removable filter.

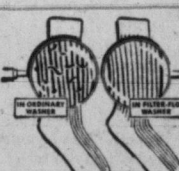

G-E CONTROL DIAL
Simply dial the required washing cycle for all types of fabrics. Both normal and short cycles are on the one dial. Choose from one to fifteen minutes for normal wash—one to four minutes for delicate fabrics.

G-E CONTROL PANEL
Allows you to give fabrics the exact amount of washing action needed. Gives the correct spin speed—temperature—hot or cold rinse. And the G-E Suds Return Control allows you to save hot, sudsy water and re-use it again.

G-E FILTER-FLO WASHER ACTION
1. Mighty Activator action removes the dirt from clothes. 2. Filter-Flo removes the dirt from the wash water. Lint, soap and scum are carried out of the washbasket as water continuously overflows into outer tub. 3. Sand and silt are forced out at bottom of washbasket. 4. Pump continuously circulates water up and through filter. 5. Cleansed, sudsy water flows back into washbasket.

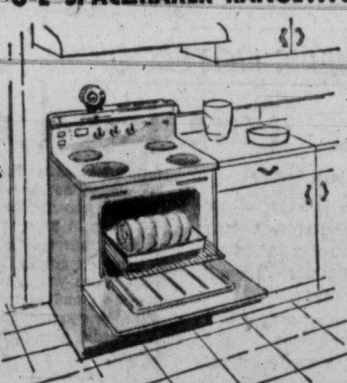

LINT FREE
Here's proof positive. After 7 washings in an ordinary washer, the sock at the left was flecked with unsightly lint. After 7 washings in the G-E Filter-Flo washer, a similar sock (right)—washed in identical, lint-producing load—showed practically no lint!

HUTCHISON FROM OTTAWA

Diefenbaker
Aligns Policy
With SocredsBy BRUCE HUTCHISON
Editor The Victoria Daily Times

OTTAWA — After a baffling silence, John Diefenbaker has emerged with a Conservative party policy, probably set the pattern of the June election and provided a clear test of the Canadian government's courage.

In his Toronto speech Monday night, doubtless the most important of his career, Mr. Diefenbaker has begun a frontal attack on the government's anti-inflation policies.

But this obviously is only the beginning of his attack. It will broaden shortly, the government believes, into an attempt to pit the provinces against the present national taxation structure. An historic election campaign is now under way.

Hutchison

When all the trimmings are removed, Mr. Diefenbaker's Toronto speech is a direct repudiation of the Government's so-called tight money policy. He says that interest rates are now too high. They are damaging small business by making it too difficult for the small businessman to borrow money. And this, Mr. Diefenbaker argues, worsens the inflationary danger by discouraging production.

His theory is virtually word for word the same theory expounded by Premier Bennett of British Columbia, and Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party. In monetary policy there is little real difference between Mr. Diefenbaker and the Social Crediters.

Whether that fact presages some co-operation between the Conservative and Social Credit parties in the election remains to be seen.

Tory, Socred Co-operation

Secondly, Mr. Diefenbaker comes out for those drastic tax reductions which the government regards as highly inflationary at a time when the total appetite for goods exceeds the supply.

Thirdly, the Toronto speech hints at the revival of an issue as old as Confederation—namely, the right of the provinces and the alleged attempt of the national government to mislead them financially. Mr. Diefenbaker did not pursue this subject far in Toronto but he said enough to convince the Government that he intends to make it a major item in his election campaign, thus following in the footsteps of his predecessor, George Drew, and making a strong appeal to Quebec.

In Desperate Need of Support

The Diefenbaker speech must be related to its context in Toronto.

The Conservative leader went there desperately in need of support from the Ontario Premier, Leslie Frost, the most powerful Conservative in the traditionally Conservative province.

Mr. Frost has been denouncing the latest fiscal agreements between the federal and provincial governments as grossly unfair to the provinces, and

CAIRO (AP)—Doria Shafik, leader of the Egyptian feminist movement, was reported today to have embarked on a "hunger strike to the death" for the "freedom of my country."

In a statement to the press, she said she demanded, among other things, an "end of the dictatorial regime in Egypt which will eventually lead my country to bankruptcy and anarchy."

Sedgman in Finals

SYDNEY (AP)—Frank Sedgman trounced Ken Rosewall 6-2, 6-3, 6-1 tonight in the semi-finals of the professional tennis tournament—the first meeting between the two Australian aces since they clashed as amateurs four years ago.

The victory hoisted Sedgman into Sunday's title match against either Pancho Gonzalez or Pancho Segura, who meet in the other semi-final Friday.

Arms Talk Agreed

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The Soviet Union agreed today to resume disarmament talks in London March 11, but suggested that the meeting be at the foreign ministers' level.

The Soviet position was stated in a letter which Deputy Foreign Minister Vassily V. Kuznetsov handed to Cmdr. Allan Noble, British Minister of State, who had proposed that the talks be held in London.

Soviet Secretly Arming Nasser?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia is reported to have resumed arms shipments to Egypt in recent weeks in what appears to be a move to rebuild President Nasser's battered armed forces.

U.S. officials who disclosed this today said, however, they could not be sure whether the shipments represent a new purchase or additional deliveries under a $250,000,000 contract disclosed in September, 1955. There have been rumors, but no confirmation, of a second deal.

The officials said they have what they regard as satisfactory evidence that Soviet deliveries include medium tanks, artillery, personnel carriers, and probably Russian jet fighters.

These weapons are understood to have been unloaded in crates from Communist ships amid great secrecy, mainly at the Egyptian port of Alexandria. The new shipments all have arrived since the Middle East fighting ended three months ago.

Any new Soviet arms shipments to Egypt would be a violation of a United Nations assembly ceasefire resolution, adopted Nov. 1, which called on all countries to refrain from introducing new war materials into the Middle East area.

The first contract is known to have included more than 100 MIG jet fighters and about 50 IL-28 twin jet medium bombers.

Two Tots Saved From Fiery Death In 2-Storey Drop

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dyck dropped their two young children to safety from the second-storey roof of a blazing house early today. In all, nine persons fled the flames.

Mrs. Dyck gashed her forearm when she broke a window to lead her family onto a porch roof and her husband fell from the eaves as he lowered himself to the ground so that he could catch one of the children. He was not hurt. Mrs. Dyck was treated at hospital.

The children, uninjured, were caught by a neighbor, Louis Raats.

Aussie Sets Swim Mark

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuters)—David Thiele, Australia's Olympic swimming gold medalist, broke the world 100-yard backstroke record to night by one-tenth of a second. Thiele swam the distance in 55.6 seconds to beat the record of 55.7 second set by Shio Oyakawa of the United States, in 1954.

Jamieson Firing
Sparks Debate

A wrangle broke out in the Legislature this afternoon over the appointment of a new sergeant-at-arms.

Shortly after the House convened, Provincial Secretary Wesley Black moved that Denzil Ashby be appointed sergeant-at-arms to succeed E. A. Jamieson, who was suspended after the last session.

Opposition leader Robert Strachan immediately rose on a point of order and opposed the resolution on the grounds that the Legislature had no knowledge that a vacancy exists.

"I cannot see why this resolution should be accepted until that knowledge is made," Mr. Strachan challenged the ruling.

House Upholds Speaker in Voice Vote

The House then upheld the Speaker in a voice vote when the opposition voting against it. Mr. Strachan described the resolution as "a very important one."

The authority of the Legislature was inherent in the resolution, he said. "It ill behooves us to chip away the foundations of democracy," said the Opposition Leader.

"This resolution placed members of the House in an invidious position," Mr. Strachan said. "I say we cannot endorse this motion without letting the Sergeant at Arms tell his story. It would be lowering the barriers of democracy," thundered Strachan before a tense assembly.

Speaker Irwin said the Constitution Act clearly stated that officers of the court hold office at the pleasure of the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council. Liberal Member George Gregory then rose in support of Mr. Strachan's opposition to the motion.

"We feel very deeply that Commander Jamieson should be permitted to give his side of the story," Mr. Gregory said.

Horne Appointment Also Voted Upon

The House then approved the appointment of law clerk, Ian Horne, on a similar voice vote, to succeed W. Berkeley Monteith.

Mr. Monteith walked from the chamber and said to a Times reporter: "Well, that's it."

THRONES SPEECH

Tougher Road Laws Forecast

Creation of a new cabinet portfolio of recreation and conservation, the promised $28 annual tax rebate to homeowners and new highway traffic regulations were forecast today in the Speech from the Throne opening the 25th B.C. legislature.

There were few surprises in the speech, which outlines legislation planned by the government at the coming session.

Reading of the speech by Lieutenant Governor Frank Ross was scheduled for 3 p.m. It was delayed by the dispute over the positions of Sergeant at Arms and legislative law clerk. (A long industry started in the province.)

"In relation to our rapidly expanding oil and natural gas development... you will be asked to give consideration to certain steps that will assure the province not only of continued development in this field, but also of wise and practical conservation of this resource."

The government is "giving consideration" to enlarging the jurisdiction of the County Courts and increasing the size of the B.C. Court of Appeal, which now has five members.

Legislation will be introduced dealing with the welfare of B.C.'s native Indians.

The departments of education and labor will combine to set

$13.6 Million Cut In Debt in '56-'57

British Columbia's net debt decreased by $13,600,000 to $136,116,783 during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1956, Premier Bennett reported today in public accounts tabled at the opening of the Legislature.

The accounts showed a net over-all improvement in B.C.'s financial position amounting to $11,968,936. Cash and investments totaled $75,415,402 compared with $62,457,588 at the end of the previous fiscal year.

Provincial expansion was reflected by an increase in assets from $486,000,000 at March 31, 1955, to $533,000,000 at March 31, 1956, and a relative increase in excess of assets over liabilities and reserves of $54,000,000. Revenue collections amounted to $227,253,373.

Debt collections were $5,142,035, and debt redemption $10,046,442—a total of $15,188,477.

General expenditures totaled $172,067,161.

Expenditures for capital purposes were shown as $34,694,363, but repayment from special B.C. funds and the federal government cut this figure to $26,374,549.

This left a net revenue surplus of $13,623,186.

City Firm Layoff Blamed On Housing Money Curb

B.C. Forest Products Ltd. today held the federal government's "tight money" policy in regard to housing loans partially responsible for forcing the layoff of a full shift of 150 men at the company's plywood mill here.

OTHER SHIFTS REMAIN

In announcing the suspension of the night shift, the company gave no indication of when and if work might be resumed. Both morning and afternoon shifts in the mill will be maintained.

The layoff is part of a combination of seasonal reduction in demand for plywood, and "the adverse effect of current credit restrictions on housing and construction programs in Canada" that have made it impossible to continue the present production.

SALES SLACKEN

The announcement came close on the heels of an announcement by Manning-Timber Products Ltd. that it plans to close its Store Street mill Feb. 15 because of a depressed lumber market.

Alexander Hendry, manager

of Sooke Lake Lumber Ltd., said his company ceased operation on the graveyard shift of its plywood mill before Christmas for similar reasons.

"Exactly the same things affect us as B.C. Forest Products," he said.

Moore-Whittington Lumber Co. Ltd. officials reported credit restrictions had "considerably curbed" their lumber sales, but that production will continue at the present level until June at least.

A plea for the federal government to "do something" in connection with the "tight money" policy was voiced at a Victoria Labor Council meeting Wednesday night by Victor Midgley, international representative of the carpenters' brotherhood.

"Our local is really concerned," he told the council. "Many other industries are going to follow unless the federal government does something."

SITUATION "CRITICAL"

Al Playfair, president of the local office workers' union, termed the situation as "critical" and urged delegates to the council to send protests against restricted credit to their members of parliament.

An indication of the industry's outlook was contained in a report to the directors of MacMillan and Bloedel Ltd. at their recent annual meeting by B. M. Hoffmeister, board chairman.

He said, in part: "Recent reports indicate that housing starts in Canada in 1957 will be 90,000 to 100,000, compared to 125,000 in 1956. This sharp reduction in starts, together with credit restrictions, indicates a poor prospect for the Canadian market to absorb the additional production (from the company's expanded facilities) this year."

FURTHER DROP SEEN

"Our trade with the United Kingdom now consists almost entirely of special sizes and grades that are purchased here only because they are not available from the smaller trees grown in the Baltic."

"Such conditions indicate still a further reduction of our sales to the United Kingdom."

"This leaves the United States as the only volume market available to us. While we have been able to increase our sales to this market, we are operating at a considerable disadvantage compared to competitive mills in the United States because of unfavorable exchange, which today is about four per cent, duty of $1 per thousand board feet, and a water freight penalty of approximately $7 per thousand, based on current charter prices.

"All sizes and types of mills are affected. However, it is particularly serious for the smaller non-integrated mills, a number of which have already been forced to close down indefinitely."

Rebellious Convicts Yield, Free Hostages

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (AP) — Rioting convicts knuckled under early today after ruling Utah State Prison in nearly 12 hours of uncontrolled revolt that was a mixture of violent destruction and almost tender concern for hostages.

Some prisoners went on a wild alcohol- and power binge; others watched TV and protected their captives.

They yielded to Governor George D. Clyde's insistence that he would not consider their demands until they turned loose their hostages and gave up their weapons.

The wild party ended at 4:55 a.m. PST. With the last 18 of the hostages came convict spokesmen who surrendered their arms.

43 POINTS

Governor Clyde said he now will consider the 43 "suggestions" of the prisoners.

One guard was stabbed in the stomach and one prisoner beaten by fellow-convicts during the melee. The prisoner, Alvin Strauss, ringleader in the 1951 riot, is reported in fair condition.

The riot started during dinner Wednesday, apparently in an argument between a convict and a guard and spread quickly.

TEXAN ELECTED PRESIDENT OF UBC STUDENTS' COUNCIL

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ben Trevino, 25-year-old native of Brownsville, Tex., was elected by a landslide Wednesday night as president of the student council at the University of British Columbia.

Trevino, who entered UBC's law school in 1954 after a three-year stint in the United States Marines, gained student acclaim for leading a group of students to meet with the provincial cabinet in a bid for increased grants to the university.

BLAMED IN VANCOUVER DEATH

Control of New Pill Asked by Druggists

B.C. Pharmaceutical Association will ask government control over a pill sold openly in Vancouver drug stores which is blamed for the poison death of a North Vancouver woman.

Victoria representative to the B.C. druggists' association, Charles Burr, said today the pills are not sold in Victoria.

He said two ingredients in the pills should have been labelled poison. He said his association will ask the provincial health department to place the pills on a prescription list.

At a Vancouver inquest Wednesday, pathologist Dr. R. T. Harmon said the pills should be banned from the market.

He said Mary Crompton, North Vancouver, died Jan. 14 from "toxicity arising from the pills."

Gilbert Henderson, an inspector for the B.C. Pharmaceutical Association, said that under provincial law the tablets should have borne a poison label.

Fireman Committed In Forged Will Case

VANCOUVER (CP)—Gilbert Campbell was committed Wednesday for Supreme Court trial on three charges of forgery arising from the Thompson will case.

A fourth charge of conspiracy laid against the 51-year-old Vancouver fireman was dismissed by Magistrate Oscar Orr.

The magistrate said there was sufficient evidence to warrant commitment on the charge of forging a $936,000 will.

But he said he could find no evidence to sustain the charge Campbell conspired to defraud the two heirs of James Thompson.

Licence Plate Snafu Can't Be Corrected

British Columbia's blue and white number plates cannot be changed even though Alberta plates have the same color scheme, a spokesman for the B.C. motor vehicles branch said today.

"The same difficulty applies in Alberta," he said. "Alberta plates are already being delivered to car owners. They cannot be changed."

He added, however, that while the colors are the same the general structure of the plate is different. Alberta plates have two letters in front of the number and the date 1957 appears at the top.

"I do not think they should lead to confusion," the spokesman said.

"This has never happened before," the spokesman said.

Small Improvement

The Throne Speech said conferences during the past year between the federal and provincial governments on a new tax-rental agreement have "improved slightly the original terms."

Legislation will be submitted at this session for a provincial tax on insurance premium income of corporations which is being abandoned by the federal government.

In the welfare field the government will: Extend the present remission of the gasoline tax for ex-servicemen amputees to all amputees.

Provide compensation for blind persons who are injured at work.

Extend hospital insurance benefits to cover certain chronic care.

There was no amplification of the promise to bring in new highway traffic regulations, but it is assumed they will be aimed at curbing the province's mounting death toll in auto crashes.

Tribute was paid in the Throne Speech to Ernest Winch, who died last month. The veteran CCF member had represented Burnaby riding in the Legislature since 1933.

"Mr. Winch will not only be mourned by his constituents, but by all those who knew his unselfish and untiring devotion to public affairs," the speech said.
